"Guessers" Are Cheerful Farmers Are Not A Little Decision Asia, the Mother

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, by Star Co.

The stock market goes up. The very good "guessers" in Wall Street believe that the two big strikes are coming to an end. That's cheerful for those who own and for those that speculate.

Wheat dropped below $1 a bushel on Tuesday; not so cheerful for farmers paying $5 a day, and even more, for help.

Freshen up your land by buying wheat, and sow it thick this Fall. In the Spring plow it under. You will get your money back many times in greater fertility, especially on potato land. It's cheaper than fertilizer.

The New York Evening Post, which lived for a while in J. P. Morgan's office, then got faint and walked out, leaving its bonds in that office, exults as follows: "We told you to buy Telephone and Telegraph stock at 108. Since then it has risen to 123¼. It's earning its 9 per cent. dividend by a comfortable margin."

Suggest lowering telephone rates and every body will scream "murder" and confiscation.

The kind-hearted Supreme Court said people of New York had not the right to regulate the price of their gas. That was confiscation, and under the Supreme Court ruling the price went up. Dividends went up, too. And soon the company will give two shares of stock for one and pay dividends on both, which will mean 16 per cent. profit. To interfere with that would also be confiscation, presumably. The corporation's motto is, "Have you a little Supreme Court decision in your safe?"

Scientists tell you that Asia is mother of all the continents. You know it is so, Professor Osborn announces, because they have found there, half-way across Mongolia, bones of dinosaurs. Asia was the centre from which reptiles and mammals, including man, went westward and eastward.

That is one theory, interesting and plausible. More interesting is the theory of German scientists, well supported, teaching that the continents move, come together, then break up and drift apart through millions of years. Africa once touched South America. Look at the east coast of one, the west coast of the other, and you will find that they fit perfectly, like the halves of a page torn in two.

The idea is that the upper part of the earth on which we live, made of comparatively light granite and other stone, floats and moves slowly, on a much heavier basalt foundation below, as a fried egg might slide along the surface of a polished plate.

King George made a good speech the other day, and wrote it himself. On affairs of state the Prime Minister prepares the King's statements. On other matters not.

The King's good speech said, "Fine buildings make good citizens." It's true. Magnificent architectural monuments stir the imagination. Handsomer, more comfortable homes create better thought.

The great mistake in this country is limiting the height of buildings. Height is the test of the new American architectural genius. To cripple that is a mistake. Some day our cities will be made of buildings a mile high, with landings for flying machines on top. The street car system will be the elevators running up and down; horizontal

Data on the operations of the Boston Black Hand is expected to be revealed through the arrest today of two men charged with the murder in Brooklyn, N. Y., of Carmelo Ferraro.

Ferraro was slain just as he was about to leave for Boston to appear as a star witness for the government in the Scarpone murder

FIRST AGAIN

THE BOSTON AMERICAN was the only newspaper yesterday to give its readers the news of the victory of the Lawrence strikers. It has been the only newspaper to keep its readers informed on the true, inside story of New England's industrial situation. The Boston American also published hours before any other paper the story of the murder of one of the Black Hand trial witnesses. The story of Douglas being banned from baseball and the Dempsey-Brennan bout off were also exclusive articles in yesterday's American. If you want the news while it is news, you must buy the Boston American—three cents—and worth it.

URGE MILL OFFER BE REFUSED

Lawrence Textile Union Board of Strategy Against the New Wage Plan

Lawrence, Aug. 17.—The strategy board of the United Textile Workers of America voted today to endorse the vote of the U. T. W. delegates at a joint conference with three other labor unions last night, when the proposal of the Pacific Mills was unanimously opposed.

Lawrence, Aug. 17.—Despite the offer of the Pacific Mills of a return to the pre-strike wages after September 5, the textile situation here is at a standstill today.

On the surface there is no indication that the workers will go back to work, as invited by the mills.

The chief trouble as outlined by labor leaders is that the invitation issued yesterday by the mills through Father O'Reilly of the citizens' strike committee was not issued officially to the unions by the mills.

Labor leaders say today that the mills apparently are tying to push the unions aside by thus extending their invitation to the workers at large.

The labor leaders feel as though their toes have been stepped on and that they and the unions are being

Latest developments today in the wholesale poisoning of Boston policemen, at a banquet given in Station 16 in honor of the new Deputy Superintendent, Thomas F. Goode, are:

1—Patrolman Leonard Delaney collapsed in the guardroom of Station 16 and was taken to the City Hospital unconscious.

2—Patrolmen Charles E. Lora, James Fennelly, James Kerrigan, Barney F. White and Millard F. D. Eldridge were treated at the City Hospital.

3—More than thirty other members of the department, including Superintendent Michael E. Crowley, reported suffering from poison but able to attend to their duties.

4—Rumors that the trouble was caused by intoxicating liquors indignantly denied by Captain Perley S. Kneeland of Station 16.

5—Deputy Superintendent Thomas C. Evans and Captain Kneeland declared the trouble to have been due to overeating.

FIVE FINED IN NANTASKET "WET" RAID

A sequel to the prohibition raid at Nantasket about a week ago took place in Hingham District Court before Judge Kelly today, when five hotel managers, including one woman, paid fines of $100 each.

They were Theresa Dwyer, Charles Smith, Thomas Quinlan, William Russell and John Davidson, who pleaded guilty through their counsel, Thomas H. Butterworth.

The government was represented by Prohibition Enforcement Agent Harold Williams. The other cases in connection with the same raid will be heard next Tuesday.

The raid was made under the direction of Prohibition Enforcement Director Roberts and Deputy Sheriff Condon of Rockland. A detail of about forty men raided the entire beach.

had been removed there in an unconscious condition, was the first official admission of the poisoning.

Police officials discussed the banquet freely, a number of them, headed by the superintendent, insisting that the victims were poisoned by food.

Judge T. J. Ahearn.

Carroll C. Whittemore, the caterer, said the beverages were responsible for the troubles which overtook members of the department who had gathered to do honor to the new deputy superintendent of police.

Orangeade, ginger ale, near beer and mineral water were served at the banquet, but according to Captain Kneeland, there was no sign of any intoxicants.

Superintendent Crowley, after a bad night, attended to his duties at headquarters today, although in a very shaky condition.

"I first felt it yesterday," he said, "but blamed it on the heat. Later when I learned that others who attended the banquet were also ill, I knew what caused my illness. I am sure it must have been the food, as I drank none of the beverages.

Deputy Thomas C. Evans.

"My son Arthur, who suffered from ptomaine poisoning two years ago, did not eat any lobster, and did drink some of the tonic. He felt no ill effects.

"The lobster looked off color and did not taste any. Lieutenant Thompson, who sat beside me, urged me to have some, and I took one forkful and then a second.

"It looked off-color and did not taste just right, so I did not finish what I had on my plate. I also had frozen pudding and ice cream."

Kupsted, Boston.
Deputy Thomas Goode.

Captain Kneeland, who succeeded the new deputy superintendent as commander of Division 16, indignantly denied rumors that intoxicants were served at the banquet.

"If there had been any liquor there I would have known it," said the captain. "There was absolutely nothing there of an intoxicating nature.

Thomas C. O'Brien.

"Too much food, too much of a mixture, with the intense heat, caused all the trouble, in my estimation.

"The boys overloaded their stomachs and then went out into the heat. You can't eat a lot of rich food and wash it down with tonics of various kinds on a hot night without suffering. I was there and tasted some of the food, but did not eat as much as many of the others."

The overeating theory was also held by Deputy Superintendent Evans, who said:

"Overeating was the cause of the trouble. I had two or three helpings of lobster, and a small quantity of ice cream, but did not eat anything else to speak of, except rolls. Overeating and a combination of rich foods together with a quantity of tonics taken on a hot night, made the men sick."

Francis J. W. Ford.

In order not to leave the big district unprotected, many officers went to work ill. They were suffering from severe pains. One motorcycle officer was discovered leaning on his machine, suffering agony.

Michael H. Crowley.

The banquet was held in the drill hall on the second floor of Police Station No. 16, Boylston street, Back Bay. The hall was decorated with flags and bunting. Seated at tables in the room were 128 officers who had served in the Back Bay district with Mr. Goode, who was recently promoted from captain of the division to deputy superintendent.

ACTORS ENTERTAIN.

Lieut. Frank Thompson was toastmaster of the evening. Six members of the "Shuffle Along" company enlivened the evening with songs and stories.

None of the banqueters felt the effects of the poison until they reached their homes. Then a number were stricken. They suffered agony. They were contracted by severe cramps. They could not eat and their limbs trembled.

Those who reported for duty were in a sorry plight. One traffic officer had great difficulty in staying at his post. "I can hardly keep my feet," he told a brother officer.

The first report that leaked out was that the policemen had been poisoned by eating lobster salad. Caterer Whittemore, whose store is at No. 1370 Boylston street, stated, however, that it was not the food that poisoned the men.

"We used fresh lobsters," he said. "It could not have been the lobster salad. The lobsters were fresh. They were bought from Thorndike & Heath of South Boston, a reputable firm. I know for a certainty that the lobsters were fresh.

"It must have been a drink. I do not know what drink it was. I saw a lot of orangeade and ginger ale bottles on the tables. Ginger ale and orangeade don't mix well. A great quantity of the contents of those bottles was consumed."

THOUGHT HER A FRIEND.

"I have been married for eleven years, and I cannot understand why Mrs. Mackey should have mentioned me as a correspondent in her divorce case. I do not know June Porenski of Providence, the other woman mentioned by Mrs. Mackey.

"But I do know Mrs. Mackey, and up to now I thought she was a friend of mine. I knew her before her marriage to Dr. Mackey, when she was Irene Mignault. I knew Dr. Mackey long before she did. I met him when one of my children was vaccinated by him, and we became good friends.

"Irene and the doctor were married quite suddenly by a justice of the peace in Boston. I understand the papers claim the marriage occurred in New York, but Irene told me herself they were married in Boston.

KEPT MARRIAGE SECRET.

"For some reason or other the marriage was kept a secret. The doctor's mother, with whom he lives, doesn't know now that her son is married.

"The doctor made improper advances. But that's as far as it went. My husband and I are quite happy together. Does this look as if there were any trouble between us?"

She exhibited her seven-months-old baby, beaming fondly at it.

In her bill, Mrs. Mackey charges her husband with improper conduct with the Porenski girl, who lived in Boston at No. 264 West Fourth street, South Boston, and at Bayside, Nantasket, June 15, 1919.

ACCUSE JUROR IN OBENCHAIN CASE

Los Angeles, Aug. 17.—Affidavits containing charges against M. E. Paddock, foreman of the jury in the second trial of Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain for the murder of J. Belton Kennedy, were filed in the Superior Court here in preparation for an announced plan of the defense to apply for her release on bond.

The affidavits were sworn to by five members of the jury who voted for Mrs. Obenchain's acquittal. They contained the allegations that Paddock, before a ballot was taken, declared he believed the defendant guilty, that he declared the court's instructions to the jury "ridiculous" and that he would not permit the other jurors to vote when and as they desired.

Italy gets $125,000,000 from the national tobacco monopoly. France gets still more.

Count Witte of Russia told this writer that the Czar's monopoly of vodka, which is plain alcohol mixed with water, brought in just enough profit to pay for the army. Highly appropriate.

If European countries did not control and own some of their monopolies they could not live. We are still rich here and can afford private ownership and extravagant competition.

It takes a lot of water from the Great Lakes to produce the useful power of Niagara. It takes a lot of money piled up somewhere to give useful results in science as well as in industry.

As long as the people have brains enough to use their own national wealth, it is lucky that individuals have intelligence to accumulate that wealth, to use it for those that do know how.

INJUNCTION FOR NEW HAVEN

Norwalk, Ct., Aug. 17.—Judge Edwin S. Thomas, in the United States Court here today following the completion of the hearing granted the motion of the New Haven road for a temporary injunction against the striking shopmen, were passed in the temporary restraining order issued on August 1.

The railroad counsel brought in 150 affidavits of attacks or threats upon employes who had been hired since the strike. No evidence was offered by the defendants.

The counsel for the striking shopmen gave notice of appeal.

According to Howard Moulton, publicity man for the New Haven, the temporary injunction granted the road by the United States Court in Connecticut will prevent any further interference with the New Haven throughout the system pending the hearing of issues. The injunction restrains strikers and strike sympathizers from damaging New Haven property.

ASK ACCOUNTING OF $5,274 FUND

Charging that Elmer L. Sollis had wasted assets of the New England Development Company when he was its general manager, the corporation, today brought a bill in equity in Superior Court against him. The bill asks that Sollis be ordered to account for money expended by him, amounting to $5,274.

It is charged that Sollis failed to conform to the statute under which the company was organized. This provides that a director must be a stockholder unless the by-laws otherwise provide.

According to the bill, from March 9, 1920, to April 7, 1921, the respondent is alleged to have "professed and purported" to act as director and during a portion of the time as president, although at no time was he a stockholder.

OFFER DIVIDES STRIKERS IN LAWRENCE

pushed out into the cold. This, they declare, they will not stand for.

The One Big Union opposes the Pacific Mills proposition and will advise the men not to go back until the mills have officially communicated with the union.

Francis Gorman of the United Textile Workers of America says he is ready for any proposition that the mills may make, but so far he has not been officially informed that the mills will pay the old scale of wages after September 5 if the men return to work.

Today the strategy board of the unions discussed the offer at their regular daily meeting.

The proposition made by the mills through Father O'Reilly is this: That the workers go back to work at once at the reduction of 20 per cent. which caused the strike. On October 1 the wages will be readjusted and the 20 per cent. will be returned to them. For those who go back immediately the 20 per cent. increase will be paid dating from September 5.

This is virtually a victory for the strikers, declare labor leaders, but the unions maintain that they have not been recognized.

Labor leaders say there are many questions not mentioned in the general offer of the mills. These matters are vital to the workers and the unions. Among them is the matter of discrimination against workers who were active in the strike. There must be no discrimination, say the leaders.

Father O'Reilly Says Mills Stand by Offer

Lawrence, Aug. 17.—Rev Father James T. O'Reilly, who issued statement to the effect that the Pacific mills would restore the old scale of wages October 1, today issued the following supplementary statement:

"I have the assurance of officials of the Pacific Mills Company, whose authority to give such assurance is unquestioned, that the basis of settlement of the industrial controversy as outlined by me in my statement of Wednesday, will be strictly adhered to by that corporation."

Rev. Ronald F. Derrick said today that he believed the offer of the Pacific Mills a sincere one and that it should be accepted instead

LOVE STAMPS ARE PROPOSD FOR TENDER MISSIVES

ASK UNCLE SAM'S AID FOR CUPID

Flood of Requests Seriously Considered by Postal Department

Washington, Aug. 17.—Don't be surprised if, some day in the near future, the postman hands you a letter bearing a stamp upon which a chubby cupid stands rampant on a field of lilies of the valley.

It will only mean that the Post-office Department has heeded an insistent demand for "love stamps" for use exclusively on love letters.

Ever since it became known that Uncle Sam is contemplating a change of design on stamps of certain denominations, the Postoffice Department has been overwhelmed with suggestions. And the proposal for "love stamps," it was stated today, was made in all sincerity. While willing to leave the design to the best judgment of the postal officials, sponsors of the stamp pointed out that the idea is "to protect tender missives of love from rough handling Artist Ray Shanahan suggests this for the Love Stamp.

MOURNING STAMPS.

Mourning stamps, for use on letters of condolence and by bereaved persons, delayed Christmas stamps, under which Christmas gifts could be mailed any time during the year and then held in storage until holiday time, Babe Ruth stamps and Charlie Chaplin stamps are among other suggestions.

The recent demand for an envelope that cannot be steamed open brought one of that variety today. Covered with paper and made of tin, it was sealed by the simple expedient of a few metal rivets. Postal officials admitted it could not be steamed open, but were dubious of the feasibility of increasing office expense by adding can openers and cold chisels to their equipment.

SUES FOR TRUST FUND IN CLOSED BANK

Attorney Arthur Berenson today began a suit in equity in the Superior Court against the Tremont Trust Company and Bank Commissioner Allen. He seeks an order of court to compel the trust company to pay in full a deposit of $50,000 put into the bank as a trust fund in February, 1921. Commissioner Allen has taken the stand that this fund is no magner a special deposit, and that Mr. Berenson will have to share the pro rata with other creditors of the company.

MARTHA MANSFIELD

The actress at top of picture was expected to marry Crane Wilbur (centre picture), but the actor said he was looking for "a pal who understands and has a mind, a partner, a girl who loves a home, a soul mate." He must have found such a one for he has just married Suzanne Chaubet, French actress who is his leading lady. Susanne is shown in the lower picture.

CRANE WILBUR MARRIES HIS LEADING LADY

"A charming, beautiful girl, above reproach, but she left me." That was what Crane Wilbur, playwright and actor, regretfully said when he secured a divorce from Mrs. Florence Dunbar Wilbur of San Francisco several months ago.

"Beautiful — uncannily beautiful, but our association is entirely professional."

Thus sighed Mr. Crane shortly after when asked whether he intended to marry Martha Mansfield, his team partner in a vaudeville sketch. Broadway had been talking of the romance as though it were all settled.

"A marvellous woman and I could easily fall in love with her. But those things have to be mutual."

Sadir Mr. Wilbur denied there was anything more than profound mutual admiral on between himself and Pearl White, the movie star, who got a divorce from Wallace McCutcheon about the time Wilbur was given his freedom. Both were in Providence at the time and both secured their divorces about the same time.

"But I haven't lost hope," said Mr. Wilbur. "If I can find a real girl, a pal who understands and has a mind, a partner, a girl who loves a home, a soul mate—I'd rush her to death. I think I'll find a girl like this some time. When I do——"

It appears that Susanne Chaubet is a real girl, a pal who understands and has a mind, a partner, a girl who loves a home, a soul mate. She fills the bill as outlined by Mr. Wilbur. For he has announced his marriage to Susanne, who is now leading lady in his vaudeville sketch. She is a French actress and made her American debut in "The Midnight Whirl," in 1915.

'SCARLET LOVE' BABY BORN HERE

Evelyn Goodell's baby was born early today in the Talitha Cumi Maternity Hospital, Jamaica Plain.

From Windsor the mother of the seventeen-year-old Sunday school pupil raced to be present when the child, whose disputed paternity has put the little Berkshire village in a turmoil, was born.

Mother and child are doing well. The baby is a girl and weighed eight pounds at birth.

Tiring of mere denials, friends of the aged Rev. Joseph Walker, accused by the girl and her parents of being the father of the child, announced that when the pastor is called upon to present his defense he will present proof that is unconvertible.

He will submit to a physical examination.

This, his son-in-law, the Rev. Mr. Mordecai, says, will show that Dr. Walker is physically incapable of reproduction. He said:

"Not only are the charges of Miss Goodell silly from a moral and social point of view, but from the standpoint of physical ability along lines of reproductivity they are insane."

To top thos development came the retort that a man from Delaware, with whom Evelyn was friendly while visiting at Winsted, Ct., last Fall, is believed to be the father of the child. The Rev. Mr. Mordecai insists that this is the case.

Miss Goodell told three persons that the Delaware man was the man who brought about her downfall. According to the aged pastor when he visited her last week at the Fahview Hospital in Great Barrington in answer to a letter he received from her she accused the Delaware man.

Miss Klipple, Pittsfield agent for the New England Home for Little Wanderers, whose investigation of the case led to the arrest of the minister, was also told by the girl of the Delaware man, and William Goodell, her father, was given the same information by his daughter.

CHURCH UPHOLDS PASTOR.

All Windsor rallied to the support of their gray-haired pastor at the mass meeting of protest called at the village church by Deacon Dennis Cady, its principal layman. Deacon Goodell was present with his wife.

At the mass meeting the members of the congregation passed a unanimous vote of confidence and support for their pastor, and agreed to send him a copy of the minutes of the meeting. The Rev. Walker will preach at the regular Sunday services, it was announced.

Rev. T. P. Mordecai, pastor in residence of the exclusive Beechwood Girls' School at Jenkintown, Pa., and son-in-law of the accused pastor, startled Windsor, however, to take his father-in-law's place in the pulpit. He would defend his father-in-law's name and preach from the text: "And the Lord was with Joseph, yet they cast him into prison."

Rev. Mordecai, husband of the eldest of the pastor's four daughters, is strong in the defence of his relative. With his wife by his side and her sister, Mrs. Ruth Roberts, seated nearby, the young minister declared that Deacon Goodell's charges were disgusting, despicable and contemptible.

SAYS AGED MAN INCAPABLE.

"To think that this poor old man, he is past 70, is the only one the whole town who has ever had a good word to say for Goodell, should he made the victim of such an outrageous charge is terrible," he said.

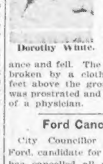
"Morally and physiologically my father-in-law is utterly incapable of such a thing." He told of his father-in-law receiving a letter from Evelyn Goodell while she was in hospital at Great Barrington, informing him of her condition and asking him id do what he could for her.

"Father visited her," he said. "He visited her as any pastor would visit a parishioner in trouble, and he gave her some money."

When Mr. Mordecai was asked where was the letter written by the girl he replied that his father-in-law had burned it.

BABY FALLS 65 FEET OFF ROOF OF HOME

Dorothy White, aged one year and eight months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. White, No. 49 Chestnut street, Chelsea, is at the Chelsea Memorial Hospital with a fractured skull as a result of a sixty-five-foot fall from the roof of her home.



Dorothy White

The child was watching her mother hanging out clothes on top of the building, lost her balance and fell. The fall was partially broken by a clothesline, about six feet above the ground. The mother was prostrated and is under the care of a physician.

'SLAYERS URGED TO KILL BY FLAPPERS

Methuen, Aug. 17.—"Kill the damned Bohunk!"

The speaker was a bobbed-haired girl of the flapper type. Her eyes inflamed with booze, a cigarette in her lips, she stood calmly by and watched her five youthful friends cave in the skull of Jacob Sarkisian, No. 349 Chestnut street, Lawrence, Sarkisian died.

Another girl with bobbed hair and unsteady pose stood by and applauded when the gang turned on Sarkisian's friend, John Bederosian, of No. 62 Concord street, Lawrence, and slashed him about the neck and body with a razor.

Weak from the loss of blood, Bederosian, from his cot in the St. John's Hospital at Lowell, today told an American reporter of the attack which resulted in his wounding and Sarkisian's death.

"Jacob and I went gathering blackberries in a patch in Dracut, about a quarter of a mile from the Methuen line," John said. "When we had gathered enough berries we started to go back. We had to cross a cowpath near a spot known as the Old Nichols Mine. Suddenly we heard singing.

"Up the path came four youths and two girls. They were all drunk. "As they came along, they noticed the basket of berries we had, and one of the men came up and demanded the basket. Jacob refused to give it up. They began to struggle over the basket. In an instant two others leaped on my friend.

"KILL," CRIED GIRL.

"One of the girls shrieked, 'Kill the damned Bohunk!' They had Jacob on the ground, and I ran to help him. Then one of the other men pulled out a razor and slashed me several times.

"One of the men picked up a large rock and brought it down on Jacob's head. Then he started to pound his head with the rock until it was smashed to a pulp. The girls stood by and encouraged them to continue, even after Jacob was dead."

Medical Examiner Thomas Smith of the Lowell district was informed of the murder, and immediately came to the scene. An alarm was spread.

VETERANS CALL FOR REMOVAL OF DANA

Charges that State Commissioner of Civil Service Payson Dana is guilty of hostility toward all war veterans and a demand for his immediate removal were made to Governor Cox today by a delegation of United War Veterans officials.

The complainants against Dana held a conference with Governor Cox in the executive chamber.

They charged that Dana, shortly after being inducted into office, publicly stated that war veterans were attempting to "hog" all public offices and that his alleged hostility was more recently demonstrated by his refusal to confirm either Michael J. Wood or Timothy W. Kelley, both veterans, for the post of Soldiers' Relief Commissioner of Boston.

The protesting delegation consisted of E. W. Foley, commander of the Charlestown unit, United War Veterans, T. J. Mahoney and Thomas McGuire, commander of Roxbury units, and Representative William J. Francis of Charlestown.

UNKNOWN BOY DROWNS IN MEDFORD

A little blonde-haired boy will not return home when his mother calls him for supper tonight.

The body is lying beneath forty feet of water in the clay pit of the New England Brick Company on Riverside avenue, Medford.

Police now know the identity of the boy. He was playing alone at the edge of the pit today when he slipped and fell headlong into the water.

Neighbors saw the lad fall. They hurried to the pit and called for police. The two officers from Police are grappling for the body. The boy is about eight years old. He had blonde hair and was dressed in overalls.

VANDALS PUT LIVES OF INNOCENT IN PERIL

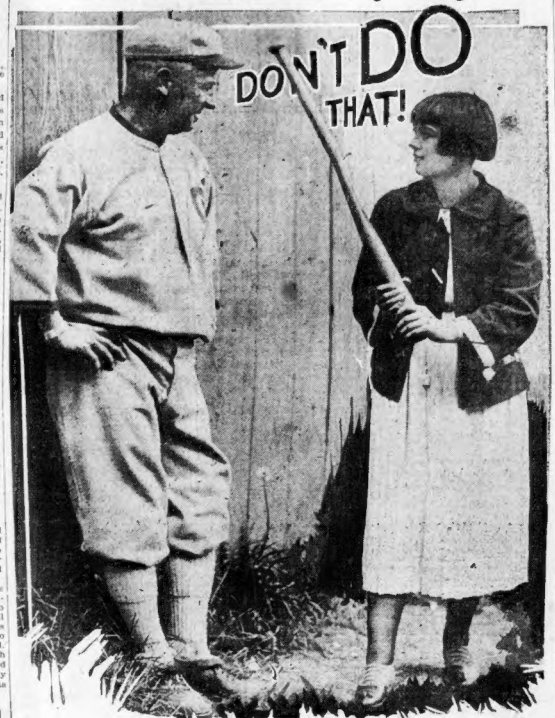
Officials of the Boston & Maine Railroad today issued the following statement, indicating attempts to wreck trains:

"At Ayer a log seven feet long and ten inches through was found across the track near the Camp Devens depot," reads the statement.

"Engine 815 at Ashburnham had all the water drained from it.

"Apart from the damage to rolling stock, the seriousness of such attempts lies in the danger necessarily incurred to innocent people who are operating or riding upon trains affected."

Red Sox Otta Hire the Flapper to Do Her Stuff Every Day



PUTTING THE JINX ON THE WHITE SOX

"Kid" Gleason almost expired when I picked up his bat to read what was carved on it. It's the onneryest thing you can do around a ball park, it seems. It's a matter of sport record now that the Red Sox won yesterday. Which only goes to show how much of a hoodoo I am.

By THE FLAPPER

All I did was to pick up a bat an' look at it and fifteen or twenty hard cooked baseball players were on my neck.

"Whassa matter, whassa matter? a mild looking man with extra knocked knees interfered. "What's happened."

But even as he looked the mild man with the loose knees went white. His head sunk between his shoulders and he aged twenty years, making him 77 in all.

"Now you've went and gone an' done it," he said miserably. "An' jus' when the ham an' eggs were done right, too. I knew som thing was gonta happen today. My left ear buzzed this morning when I got up."

NEAR CREPE FOR HER.

"Should we kill the dame?" a player with beetling brows asked in an off-hand tone.

"H'm—n-no," William Gleason, decided. "After all, I guess it's jus' superstition."

The ten or fifteen tough eggs went back to practice and the "Kid" remained to explain how far I'd gone.

"There's a lotta things you c'n do to lose a game f'r the Chicago White Sox," the manager and maker of cracks teams told me.

"But nothin' worse'n picking up somebody's bat. I've known players to kill people for much less'n that. Not that I'm superstitious myself," he hurried to explain, "but the boys are."

THEY ALL FALL.

"Now take Harry Hooper, who usta be with the Red Sox. He won't tip his hat. All the other boys tip their hats when they've been applauded for a good play, but not Mrs. Hooper's boy, Harry. It's his hoodoo.

"A'course I'm not superstitious myself," Kid Gleason repeated, earnestly. "But I understand the way the boys look at it.

"Now, f'rinstance; you take a man's been eatin' roast beef an' mashed potatoes f'r lunch every day an' one day he decides he'll have pork sausage instead. That guys gonna make a clown outa himself on the field. You gotta eat the same things every day. It's perfectly simple. If you don't you lie right down an' die. Most the boys 've got that down. They've learned from experience."

SUPERSTITIOUS, OH NO!

"But jus' picking up a bat to see how heavy it is," I interrupted. "I can't see how that's gonna lose a game."

"Les' see that bat," the Kid said suddenly, taking it outa my hands. He scanned it thoughtfully with sun-blinked eyes.

"Omigosh," he moaned.

"Now what?" I asked.

"It's my bat!" raved the Kid. "An' it's been such a good bat for three years. That's a record for a bat—an' such a prize bat. Oh me, oh me."

"It's a good thing you're not superstitious," I said.

"Right you are," the Kid came back, weakly. "Right you are."

At this moment the game or something started and the Kid's attention was demanded somewhere else. He smiled as though nothing had happened and loped off.

LOW DOWN ON THE "KID."

"Ha, ha," ha-ha'd a ball player at my elbow, He looked fondly after the retreating figure of the famous baseball impresario. "The Old Man ain't superstitious. That's a good one. Why, say, listen, superstitions is what that guy's nothing else but.

"I've seen him rout bed-ridden old ladies outa their hotel rooms jus' because the number on the door was lucky and he wouldn't sleep nowhere else. If he can't get room 220 when he comes to Boston he sleeps in the lobby.

"An' that ain't even half of it," went on the ball player, warming up. "If he sees a hat on his bed in his hotel room he pitches it straight out the window.

"A hat on your bed's the worst luck in the world. More than half the auto drivers who've been killed had hats on their beds before the races. It's statistics.

"Funny, though," the ball player added, looking over in the direction of his manager with a Heaven-Home-and-Mother expression in his eyes, "nobody ever gets sore at the Kid f'r pitching out their hats. Myself, I wore a derby one whole hot week jus' to show I was sorry."

And the ball-player stooped over and picked up a pin.

'JUDGE A GRAND MAN,' SAYS PUSH CART HERO

Costas Americus, pedlar, brought a whole flock of laughs into the somewhat dreary confines of Municipal Court today when he appeared before Judge Murray to answer the charge of parking his push-cart where it shouldn't be parked.

He made a prevaricator out of the arresting policeman for a mere matter of three appearances in court, then he did other things. The patrolman said Costas had been in court 20 times on the same charge. Costas immediately called out that it was an outrageous lie, as he had been in but 17 times. Time was called here while Costas was fined $20.

At this judgment another roar of indignant protest went up from Costas. He appealed. Judge Murray held him in $50. Whereupon he went into his sock and pulled out a poke so fat that every dip in the courtroom got thirsty. There were all kinds of bills in the roll, as was proven afterward.

Costas counted out $50 and Clerk Millward counted it a second time. He pointed out a strange looking bill which proved to be a Newfoundland $2 note.

"We don't take that here," said Judge Murray. "This is America."

"I know it's America," returned Costas. "I fight for America."

"What's that?" queried the Judge.

And then Costas explained that he had been two years in France with the Yankee Division.

"In that case we change that fine to $5," said the Judge.

"You're one grand man," said Costas, and paid.

JUDGE ASSAILS 'DISAGREEABLE' HUSBAND

Arthur Erwin, advertising man, living at No. 37 Audubon road, received a scathing denunciation from Judge Palmer in Roxbury Court today before he was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction for failure to support his wife, Rita, and one month for assault on her. He appealed both charges.

After Mrs. Erwin, a frail woman of twenty, had sobbed out her story on the witness stand, Judge Palmer said:

"This man is unquestionably a disagreeable man to live with, but more than that he has a vindictive look in his narrow eyes. I am trying to discover how the best interests of the wife can be served."

Mrs. Edwin said that though her husband received a good salary she was compelled to support herself by working as a stenographer at $25 a week for a Back Bay automobile firm.

She said that he had demanded money of her on August 8 and when she refused, she declared, he struck her and threw her against the wall. It was then that she complained against him and the complaint resulted in his arrest and disappearance today.

When Erwin offered his defence, declaring that he paid the rent at times, and had bought food, Judge Palmer said his statements were too indefinite and that he produced no receipts to show that he had so paid.

The judge finally ruled that Erwin must pay his wife $5 weekly until the case is disposed of in higher court.

Enver Pasha was attired in a British uniform when found. He was stabbed five times on Aug. 4 in fighting against the Bolsheviki.

PLANE IS OFF ON TRIP TO BRAZIL

New York, Aug. 17.—Pointing the nose of the Sampaio Correira seaward, Lieutenant Walter Hinton, U. S. N. R. F., took off from the waters of Jamaica Bay at 7:20 o'clock today and started to put behind him the 600 miles to Charleston, S. C., the first hop in the 5,500-mile flight from New York to Rio de Janeiro.

There were four others on the plane in addition to Hipton, including Dr. E. Pintos Martins, a Brazilian airman.

The plane passed Manteo, Roanoke Island, at 10 a. m.

Other stops will be made at Port-Au-Prince, Hayti, and at Georgetown, British Guiana. If there is no mishap and the weather is good, Hinton hopes to reach Rio de Janeiro, in time for the opening of the Brazilian exposition on September 1.

Military Operations in South Ireland Nearly Complete

Limerick, Ireland, Aug. 17.—Michael Collins, head of the Irish Provisional Government, expects that military operations in the South of Ireland will be completed within the next fortnight. He gave this opinion in the course of an interview in which he said also that so far as the military situation was concerned the new Parliament could meet at any time.

HEAR DUNDALK TAKEN FROM INSURGENTS

(By the Associated Press.)

Dublin, Aug. 17.—A report reached Dublin today that National army troops had recaptured Dundalk from the Republican insurgents, who occupied it a few days ago.

Advices from Greenore, in Northeastern County Louth, say the Republicans have occupied Carlingford, the favorite Summer resort of Cardinal Logue, primate of Ireland. St. Patrick landed there in the fifth century. The cardinal left before the attack.

Several Americans here are holding counsel with Michael Collins head of the provisional government and others, endeavoring to emphasize the necessity of restoring peace in Ireland as soon as possible.

It is reported that efforts may be made to bring Mr. Collins and Eamon de Valera together on the basis of a political accommodation whereby De Valera would be authorized to organize a republic party in Parliament and strive by constitutional means, if such be possible, to bring about a republic eventually.

Some representative Irishmen express the opinion that there now will come "a real military engagement to settle the civil war issue once and for all, with no temporizing measures." One of them said today:

"Now look out for the real scrap." The town of Clifden on the Irish coast forty-three miles northwest of Galway, has been freed of Irish Irregulars, and the Marconi wireless station there, which was recently seized by the insurgents, has been rescued by National army forces.

RAIL AND UNION MEN MEET TO TALK PEACE

New York, Aug. 17 (By International News Service).—A final and supreme effort to settle the national strike of railway shopmen, through the intercession of other branches of unionized railway labor was undertaken here this afternoon when leaders from five non-striking brotherhoods met a committee from the railway executives.

It was not expected that an agreement could be effected at once, but there was an undertone of optimism that common ground would be reached which would furnish the basis of a settlement later.

SENIORITY A BIG ISSUE.

If the conference collapses the burden of settling the strike, or of taking such relief measures as will prevent complete paralysis of rail traffic, will be thrown back upon the government and President Harding will be compelled to go before Congress with a message dealing with the situation.

Members of the executives' committee intimated they knew nothing of the nature of the proposals the rail men were to put up to them. While the committee is empowered to receive proposals it has no authority to act upon them. They must be submitted to the railway presidents for final decision.

The chief issues were the question of granting seniority rights to strikers who are taken back to work and the possibility of taking back all strikers in view of the large number of men who have been taken on by the railroad companies since the strike began.

The brotherhoods were represented by the following: Warren S. Stone, engineers; L. E. Sheppard, conductors; W. N. Doak, trainmen; E. H. Robertson, firemen and T. C. Cushen, switchmen.

STRIKERS WITHIN CALL.

On the other side of the conference table sat the committee representing the railway presidents, made up of T. DeWitt Cuyler, chairman; Howard Elliott, Northern Pacific; Hale Holden, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy; Julius Kruttschnitt, Southern Pacific; W. L. Mapother, Louisville and Nashville; W. W. Atterbury, Pennsylvania; C. H. Markham, Illinois Central, and A. H. Smith, New York Central.

Mr. Cuyler is president of the Association of Railway Executives.

Leaders of twenty-one unions executives, including Bert M. Jewell, head of the striking shopcraftsmen, are within easy call if they are needed.

SIMPLICITY MARKS NORTHCLIFFE SERVICE

London, Aug. 17.—Simplicity marked the funeral of Lord Northcliffe, famous British publicist, in Westminster Abbey today. The burial in St. Marylebone Cemetery was equally simple.

Homage to his memory was paid by persons in every walk of life. As the body was borne from Lord Northcliffe's London home in Carlton terrace to Westminster Abbey, whose crumbling walls were restored through the efforts of the late publicist, there were demonstrations of grief in the crowds that lined the streets. The coffin was hidden beneath masses of floral tributes.

ABOUT DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

Mrs. Woodsford says: "My bowels were out of order and my breath was bad. I was shaky all over. I had terrible headaches and it seemed I had suffered years before your Dr. True's Elixir was brought to me. After a short time I was myself again, my bowels were all right and I'm full of gratitude."

MOTHER'S TALE OF WOE GETS BABIES HOME

The need of Mrs. Nora Jones of No. 254 Shawmut avenue has been met.

Mrs. Jones, through the Boston American, offered three of her four children to anybody who would give them a good home.

She related a story of nine years of matrimonial agony, poverty and brutality on the part of her husband.

The Boston American today received this letter from Florence Feeteau, No. 47 Main street, Hopkinton, Mass.:

"To the mother that seeks help: It seems a shame to separate so nice a family. I offer my home to any or all of the three children, and will share alike with what I have. They will have plenty to eat, good care and a good place to sleep in a country village. Schools are near. If it is possible for me to have one of the children, I would prefer the little girl, as she could be a playmate for my little girl. If not I will take all three.

"I would prefer not to take adoption papers. Later on the mother may be in a position to take care of her own children, and then she will be welcome to them.

"If needed I can give good references."

The letter has been referred to Mrs. Jones. The three children for whom Mrs. Jones wishes a home are Edward, five; Vincent, six, and Helen, two years old.

Tammany Calls for Light Wines and Beer

New York, Aug. 17.—The Tammany Tiger is in favor of light wines and beer. At the wigwam, Charles F. Murphy, the big chief, introduced a resolution recommending that all New York county Democratic candidates for the House of Representatives be required to pledge themselves to support any measures put before Congress with a view to modifying the Volstead Act so as to bring back the less potent liquors.

The executive committee of the Democratic County Committee adopted the resolution unanimously.

GHOSTLY MARCH OF CORPSES IN TURKEY

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 17.—"A ghostly march of corpses" was the way a returned traveler today described the deportation of Greek Christians from Anatolia by the Turks. The traveler is Ethel Thompson of Boston, who has returned from the Near East where she was an eye witness of the sufferings which the exiles were compelled to undergo.

"The whole thing was too ghastly for adequate description," said Miss Thompson.

"The Greek men, women and children were herded together and stumbled forward at the point of Turkish swords and bayonets. Thousands perished by the wayside. I saw women who looked unhuman. I saw 300 children surrounded by Turkish gendarmes who beat them with their swords.

"There were girls in the ranks with faces disfigured and distorted out of all human shape. They had mutilated themselves to spoil their natural beauty and thus escape the slave life of a Turkish harem.

"Dead bodies lined the roads and overhead flew an army of vultures ready to feast upon the orgy of death below."

FOIL PLOT TO WRECK TRAIN FOR BOSTON

York Beach, Me., Aug. 17.—The lives of scores of vacationists returning to Boston from here today were menaced by vandals who planned an explosion in the locomotive that was prepared for the trip south.

Only the vigilance of George Gow, local night watchman for the Boston & Maine railroad, prevented possible tragedy and the inevitable destruction of a deal of property.

While Watchman Gow was off duty at lunch hour early today the marauders permitted all the water to run out of the boiler of the engine while the fires were going at full blast.

Further to complete their work of destruction the vandals cut the air-hoses on ten passenger cars.

AIR HOSE SEVERED.

On his return from lunch Gow saw what had happened, and working with desperate energy was able to draw the fire in time to prevent an explosion.

Gow began an investigation which revealed the severed cutting of the air-hose. Had not this been discovered the airbrakes could not have been worked and there was every possibility of a wreck and tragedy.

An investigation by the local police and railroad detectives was immediately begun. Authorities say whoever made the attempt at destruction was familiar with the workings of a locomotive and the makeup of trains.

SAW MEN RUN AWAY.

Two men were seen running from the railroad yard into the woods early today. Later two men attempted to steal an automobile in Ogunquit, twelve miles away, and were frightened away when the local constable fired at them. The police believe that these are the men who attempted to wreck the train.

Extra guards were immediately placed around the railroad yard and Chief of Police Chalk said that anybody who could not explain his presence here after midnight tonight would be arrested.

Puts Loss of Life At Swatow At 60,000

Amoy, Aug. 17 (By the Associated Press). — Swatow's death total in the typhoon of August 2 is conservatively estimated at 60,000, a representative of the Associated Press learned in a visit to the stricken area. The storm was one of the worst disasters which has visited this part of the globe. The property damage will run into many millions. The Standard Oil Company suffered a heavy loss.

No foreigner was seriously injured in the storm, which almost obliterated the native section of Swatow.

TRAP TWO WHO MADE MONEY BY "MAGIC"

(See Picture Page.)

Take a crisp $500 bill, place it firmly between two sheets of new paper, pour magic acid on it, let it rest over night, and there you have three new $500 bills instead of one.

So Paul Delasquez and Manuel Suarez, now under arrest for the larceny of $800, told Hannibal Stevens of Parmenter street, North End.

It was a money-making machine, so they said, when they called on Hannibal for a demonstration that would convince anybody.

Hannibal produced one $500 bill and three $100 bills. The $500 note was placed between the paper, and the demonstration was reaching its magic climax when Sergeant Morris Sullivan and Officer John Spinney entered from the upper left, grabbed the machine and found in the pockets of the pair the money that was supposed to rest in the machine overnight with aforesaid results.

The police confiscated 12 bottles of acid, a wooden press, and a quantity of ordinary writing paper.

Before Judge Bennett of the Municipal court, the suspects were held in $20,000 bonds, their cases continued for a week in order to give a Brockton woman fleeced of $4,000 in a similar manner, and a resident of the North End swindled out of $1,600 an opportunity to scrutinize the couple.

THREE ARRESTS IN BLACK HAND MURDER

case now being tried in Judge Dubuque's court.

The men arrested are Guiseppe Florino and Albert Anastasio. They were taken into custody in New York as the result of information given by Mrs. Carolina Talnosano, the woman who went to New York from Boston to warn Ferraro that he had been marked for death by the Black Hand.

The two men arrested for the killing of Ferraro were found guilty of the slaying of George Purello in Brooklyn. They spent eight months in the death house at Sing Sing, and were freed after a new trial was granted by the courts a few weeks ago.

Mrs. Talnosano was sitting alongside Ferraro in the Summer garden in Brooklyn when two barrels of a shotgun were fired, killing Ferraro instantly.

At the table were also Thomas Fiolo, Joseph de Cresto, Pico Parcello, Ernalno Dentino and one Jennie Mollica.

Ferraro, who had been in hiding in Boston for about four weeks, went back to New York against the advice of Inspector Joseph Cavagnaro, head of the Boston Black Hand squad.

SINSTER DEATH SIGN OF THE BLACKHAND

THE SIGN OF DEATH

This signal, a simple movement of the right hand to the lips, the forefinger crooked and the tip of the thumb placed where the lips meet, is the gesture of doom for the victim of Black Hand vengeance. The hand is pulled quickly from the mouth. The pose was made especially for the Boston American by one whose name cannot be published.

Black Hand Defence Is Near End

The defence of four of the six men on trial in the Scrapone black hand murder was completed today by Attorney Frank Zottoli.

Francesco Toscano and Joseph Simboli are the two defendants whose defence remains to be presented in the case.

Today Francesco Toscano, the fourth defendant, took the witness stand in his own behalf.

He was preceded by Guiseppe Anzardo, whose defence was also rested with the exception that counsel reserved the right to recall Capt. Ainsley Armstrong to question him about statements that had been made to him on January 30, by one Antonio Mascatti.

Mrs. Maria Anzardo, sister-in-law of the defendant of that name, living at No. 464 Hanover street, gave testimony intending to establish an alibi showing that Anzardo was not present when the blackhand letters were written.

She testified she was ill last Christmas, and that Anzardo called to see her every day, in the mornings at nine, occasionally at noon, and every evening from 6 to 9.

On the morning of the murder, Anzardo went to her house about nine o'clock and was sober when tended to contradict previous testimony that he was intoxicated.

Francesco Toscano, fifth defendant, veteran of the Italian army, limped to the witness stand on crutches, and testified that the only connection he had with one Antonio Mascatti was to use him as an interpreter in the collection of some insurance.

Revere Carpenter Injured

Morris Feldman, forty-five years old, of No. 55 Thornton street, Revere, while working on the building, No. 28 Shirley avenue, fell from a staging, a distance of thirty feet. He suffered a fractured arm and possible internal injuries. He is at Frost Hospital.

DYNAMITE CAR LINE BRIDGE AT BUFFALO

Buffalo, Aug. 17.—The west retaining wall of the big steel bridge over which the International Railway Company operates its high speed electric line to Niagara Falls was dynamited today. Only the fact that the explosion took a downward course saved the span from destruction.

Patrolman Henry Frommert, the first man to reach the bridge, immediately arranged to flash the oncoming cars.

USE DELATONE

(Toilet Tips)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 2 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

WHITNEY TO WED SOON DESPITE DANCER'S SUIT OVER CHILD

WAITS IN WEST FOR WEDDING

Mrs. Vanderbilt Backs Youth in Law Clash With Miss Fontaine

New York, Aug. 17.—Despite the fact that Evan Burrows Fontaine, the Oriental dancer, is pressing her suit against Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, the wedding of young Whitney and Marie Norton will be solemnized very quietly at Westbury, during the latter part of October following the return to these shores of "Sonny's" sister and pal—Barbara Whitney.

Those who profess to be in the confidence of the young couple say "Sonny" has the backing, in his troubles, of his grand mater, the socially powerful dowager, Mrs. Vanderbilt. Several important family conferences have been held at "The Breakers," Mrs. Vanderbilt's palatial abode out on the cliffs at Newport.

"Sonny's" wherealouts remains a secret to all except the close friends of the family and pretty Miss Norton, but it is said the son and heir of the combined Whitney-Vanderbilt fortunes is now living quietly out in Wyoming with his brother-in-law, Roderick Tower, son of Charlemagne Tower, one time ambassador to Germany.

POLITICAL NOTES

Albert K. Eldinger, candidate for clerk of Superior Court for the transaction of criminal business, will open his campaign Monday night with rallies in Revere.

Three rallies will be held in Roxbury tonight by John Jackson Walsh, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. He will speak at Hyde Park Square, Tremont and Gurney streets, Cabot and Ruggles streets.

Joseph B. Ely will speak at three rallies in Charlestown tonight. Meetings will be held at Sullivan square, Hayes square and Central square.

Joseph Walker assailed Senator Lodge at a meeting today in Beverly. He declared that the Lodge-Innes machine will be broken. He said that the venerable Senator caters to the leaders of the machine.

Attorney-General Allen, speaking at a field day of the Maple Leaf Club at Quincy Point, declared that Charles H. Innes "is a liability and not an asset to the Republican party today."

Former Governor Foss addressed a noon-day crowd at Maverick square, East Boston, today. He pointed to his activities industrially in East Boston, and declared that he wants the East Boston residents to support him in his fight for office so he can continue the work where he left off at the close of his governorship. Tonight he will speak in Cambridge at Fourth and Cambridge streets, Columbia and Cambridge streets, Inman square and Central square.

Thomas Lambert of Ward 18, Dorchester, announces that he has withdrawn from the fight for nomination on the Democratic ticket for the State Legislature, in favor of the regular Democratic candidate, John J. Mulcahy. He has about 600 names on his papers, all of whom he hopes will give their vote to Mulcahy.

Mulcahy is a graduate of Boston College and Harvard Law School and a former ensign in the United States Navy.

Shot By Gang

D. SINISCALCHI

WORKERS QUIT UNDER SILENT WOMEN'S PLEA

Four thousand striking women stitchers conducted a silent demonstration outside the plant of the John R. Donovan Co., Market street, Lynn, today until 150 members of their union left the factory.

These 150 members of Local 67, U. B. W. of America, returned to work today under the impression that the strike had been settled. On learning that it was still in effect they quit work.

The cutting and lasting departments in all Lynn factories were shut down today as fast as the work on hand was completed, owing to the strike of stitchers.

Representatives of the Manufacturers' Association appeared before the Supreme Court seeking an injunction against officials of Joint Council No. 1 and officers of Local No. 67 restraining them from permitting officers and members of the United Shoe Workers of America from remaining on strike.

Attorney Harold D. Linscott, for the manufacturers, claimed the injunction on the ground that the strike of the stitchers was unauthorized.

SOMERVILLE MAN HURT IN CRASH

Bees Force Owner of Flivver to Take the Air

Geneva, N. Y., Aug. 17.—W. H. Rogers deserted his flivver coupe without stopping to say good-bye, when a swarm of bees took possession of his car.

Finally with the animated cloud of honey-makers practically enveloping the car as they "joined the mob" several brave Genevans helped push the car to the home of a bee keeper who succeeded in removing the swarm and then turned Lis back to Rogers.

ASKS COURT TO O. K. $550,000 MOVIE SALE

Thirteen movie theatres, cornered under the control of Max Mitchell and the closed Cosmopolitan Trust Company, are going to be sold for $550,000 cash, if the Supreme Court grants a petition filed by Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen today.

It is estimated the bank invested $1,600,000 in these theatres.

When Mr. Allen took hold of the bank he found the Mitchell outfit practically in complete control of the Empire Circuit, with thirteen separate houses in its string.

In the hope of getting back the money for the depositors, Allen advertised the theatres for sale several different times. The highest cash offer ever received was $550,000.

The theatres are the Strand in Portland, Me., the Strand and Premier in Newburyport, the Strand in Amesbury, the Central Square in Waltham, the Bijou, Empire, Rialto and Nickelodium in Fall River, and the Colonial, Bijou, Strand and Opera House in Newport, R. I.

HEARST STATES HIS POSITION ON THE NEW YORK GOVERNORSHIP

FIRM FOR HYLAN BECAUSE PROGRESSIVE IS NEEDED

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, Aug. 17.—William Randolph Hearst made public today a statement on the Governorship in response to questions submitted to him by representatives of the afternoon newspapers. The statement follows:

While I am not a candidate, I have been mentioned as one; therefor I prefer to make no comment upon Mr. Smith's announcement of his candidacy for the governorship other than to say that it is a very dignified and very definite expression of his willingness to assume the leadership of the party in the State.

Mr. Smith is doubtless as well fitted as any man in the State to lead the Democratic party, if it is to be a conservative party, and dispute with the Republican party the support of the great interests which are now behind Governor Miller.

I am a progressive, however, and without any disparagement to Mr. Smith I believe it is the highest duty as well as the best policy of the Democratic party to make its appeal to the masses of the people rather than to the privileged interests.

HYLAN'S FAITHFUL SERVICE.

For this reason my personal support is very earnestly given to Mayor Hylan. He has aligned himself with the citizenship generally and defended the citizenship from the exploitation of the profiteering interests.

His record of faithful service to the public seems to me to give him the first claim upon the governorship and the State leadership.

The permanent success of the Democratic party seems to me to be entirely in the line of faithful service to the public.

Considering the matter merely from a narrow standpoint of policy and political strategy, the Democratic party cannot make a stronger appeal to the privileged interests than the Republican party makes.

Nor can any nominee offer promise of more abject service to these interests than Mr. Miller has already given.

Therefore, should the Democratic party assume to sit at the table of plutocracy, it would merely be a Lazarus, at the feast, securing nothing but the crumbs which fall from the table of Dives.

IN WORDS OF TILDEN.

While if the party become the champion of the people in the contest of the exploited public against the exploiting profiteers, it may have, and I think certainly will have, the grateful support of the people for many years to come and may sit proudly at the head of its own political table and not occupy the humbling position of a beggar at the Republican party's board.

I always remember the saying of that splendid old Democrat, Samuel J. Tilden, Governor and leader of the Democratic party in the days of its greatest glory. He said:

"The Democratic party will always succeed when it has the courage to be Democratic."

That means when it has the courage to serve the people and not the interests and, when it has the courage to nominate men who have served the people and not served the interests.

SMITH'S CANDIDACY.

I propose Mayor Hylan as the best example of that kind of public man and that kind of public service in the State of New York today.

1—You ask me if in the event of the nomination of Alfred E. Smith for Governor by the Democratic State Convention, will I support him?

When Mr. Smith was contemplating running for Governor in 1918 he called on me and asked me if I would support him if nominated.

I told him I would support the nominee of the convention and if the nominee were himself I would support him.

He went out with this promise of mine sincerely given. He secured the nomination; I supported him and he was elected by 15,000 votes. I flatter myself that my papers, with their millions of circulation, contributed at least 15,000 votes.

Mr. Smith has not asked me this year whether or not I will support him, nor has he said whether he will support the nominee of the convention, whoever that may be.

Under the circumstances there does not seem to be any necessity for me to make any declaration of the attitude of myself and my papers until the convention meets and nominates.

It may take a conservative stand and not nominate Mr. Smith; it may take a progressive stand and nominate Mr. Hylan.

Furthermore, I do not think too much discussion of personalities among Democrats at this time is desirable. The party seems to me to have an excellent chance of winning in this election if it takes the good, sound Democratic ground of honest service to the public.

AS TO SENATORSHIP.

Therefore, the less personal discussion and personal dissension there is the better for the party and the better for the public, which sorely needs honest and faithful service from some party.

2—You ask me if in the event of Mr. Smith's nomination for Governor I would accept the nomination for United States Senator on the same ticket?

Let me say positively that I am not a candidate and that I would not accept such a nomination under any ordinary circumstances.

There is, however, one condition on which I would accept such a nomination and that is in case Mayor Hylan were nominated for Governor and he should wish me to run in some capacity on the ticket.

Under those circumstances I would run for any office he wished or do anything within my power that was believed to be for the benefit of the ticket and that might help in any way toward its success.

Left, however, to my personal preferences, I certainly would not run.

3—You ask if William J. Connor's is acting with my authority and sanction?

Mr. Connors is a very able man, a wealthy man, and an absolutely independent man. He is acting entirely on his own initiative.

He is, however, one of the most loyal men in the world and one of the best friends any man could possibly have.

STANDS BY FRIENDS.

I want to be just as good a friend to him as he is to me and just as loyal to him as he is to me. Therefore, whatever he does is right as far as I am concerned.

I do not agree with him about the desirability of my running for office, but I do firmly believe in the last analysis I will find Mr. Connors with me in support of Mayor Hylan for the governorship.

But Mr. Connors is entitled to his opinion, and I am deeply complimented by his good opinion and his fine friendship. I am firm in my admiration and appreciation of Mr. Connors.

He does not want my authority and sanction for anything he does and he has not asked for it, but if he did want it, he could have it. He is my friend and I am his; and my cardinal principle is to stand with my friends.

4—You ask me if I think the nomination of Mr. Smith by the Democrats and Mr. Miller by the Republicans would necessitate the creation of a third party?

This is something I know nothing about. I should think as a general political proposition it would be wise to give the Progressive sentiment, which is apparently very strong at this time throughout the whole country, some avenue of expression in order to prevent the formation of a third party.

PROGRESSIVES GAINING.

But I feel confident that that avenue of expression will be furnished by one or the other of the existing parties.

In many states—like Pennsylvania, Indiana, Iowa and North Dakota—the Progressives are gaining control of the Republican machine.

In this State I think they should and I believe they will find their natural home in the Democratic party under such leadership as Mayor Hylan's.

This is a progressive period. Anyone who does not realize that cannot read the handwriting on the wall.

For my part I have not departed one jot from the position I took at the beginning of this campaign.

I am for the nomination of Mayor Hylan on the Democratic ticket and for Major La Guardia on the Republican ticket.

If either party has the intelligence and the conscience to align itself with the powerful progressive sentiment existing throughout the country at this time, it will nominate such an able and sincere representative of that progressive sentiment as such one of these men has proved himself to be.

I believe that the party which does make this appeal to the progressive sentiment and to the popular interest will win the election.

That is my personal opinion as a progressive.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

Accuses Cook

VIOLA ATKINS.

Granddaughter of Capt. Cook to whom he wrote refusing to pay her tuition at college as result of her denunciation of him after his second marriage.

THREATEN TAR AND FEATHERS FOR COOK

By ERNEST T. JENKINS.

Provincetown, Aug. 17.—A coat of tar and feathers and a ride through this historic town on a rail if he ever appears here again is promised John A. Cook, retired Arctic explorer and millionaire oil promoter, whose love ramifications have astounded Cape Codders.

Today townsfolk gathered in small groups and openly threatened tar and feathers for Captain "Johnny." Some there were who even suggested a vigilance committee to seek the sixty-seven-year-old retired whaler in his honeymoon cottage in the Waban section of Newton.

CONDEMNS CAPTAIN.

Cape Codders appear to be unanimous in their condemnation of the navy's former "pooh bah," who recently divorced wife No. 1 in Oklahoma, and is supposed to have married Miss Ethel M. Sparks, a thirty-eight-year-old widow. There is also another angle to Captain "Johnny." Several hundred natives together with many in Boston, Newton, New Bedford and other places would like to know if they are to ever receive any return on the money they invested in the captain's four oil syndicates.

The Boston American presents today a letter that is destined to occupy a conspicuous place when the alienation of affections and divorce suits of wife No. 1 come to trial. It was addressed to his eighteen-year-old granddaughter, Miss Viola Atkins—and was in reply to one she sent Cook, asking if it was true that he had divorced his wife to marry another woman, and asking if he would carry out his previous promise to pay her tuition at college.

LETTER "INSULTING."

As a result of the captain's reply, Miss Atkins, who enters Simmons College in the fall, now declares her grandfather is "an old villian" for deserting Wife No. 1. Captain Cook's letter, in part, follows:

Tulsa, Okla., June 6, 1922.

"Dear Grand-daughter:

"Replying to yours of first, must say I am surprised at sentiments expressed. Do not ask me to add you financially in one part, while you are so impudent in other parts to express yourself in a manner which I consider very insulting and wholly uncalled for. Uncompalainingly, I lived a life at home which had long ago become intolerable. Think of such a life had become greater than I could bear.

"I promised to pay your tuition at college. Since, however, you have called me dishonorable and expressed sentiments unbecoming to be proposed towards one who has chosen to be my wife for the few years I have allotted me, and as you have not one bit to blame, I cannot pay the tuition. I do not see, Viola, entertaining as you do that hatred toward us, how you can expect me to help you as I promised. My home is at No. 575 Chestnut street, Waban, Mass., where I expect to be after June 23.

DOOR OPEN TO FRIENDS.

"The door is open to relatives who are 'friendly' and to real 'friends,' and FOREVER CLOSED to 'false friends' and relatives who choose to condemn me or mine for acts that is our business, and no one else's. I contemplated divorce proceedings long ago. And I got my divorce lawfully. All my friends expressed to me their great joy that I did so. Ma Cook will always be provided for as long as she lives. Why should I suffer longer when I could be no comfort to her.

"Consider what I have written and if after due deliberation you feel that you can look upon me as a grandaughter should and respect my wife instead of speaking of her as you did in your letter, I shall be pleased to aid you by paying your tuition as I promised. It is now up to you all to forever remain strangers or be friendly.

"John A. Cook."

Beverly Pageant Sponsored by Society Folk Along Shore, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

SOCIETY at Newport will be very busy on at least two evenings of this coming week-end with the two large balls which are planned for Friday and Saturday evenings.

Five hundred guests have been invited to the ball given by Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice at "Miramar" on Friday in the main ball room. Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. William Fahnestock have summoned the same number to their palatial home, "Villa Rosa." Here the dancing will be in the ball room and on a pavilion erected on the lawn. Among the prominent ones giving dinner parties before the events are Mr. and Mrs. Ogden N. Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, 2d, Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury Blair, Mr. and Mrs. James S. Cushman and Mrs. Henry Clews.

All homes there are thrown open for the events, and are crowded to the limit with week-end guests. Of great interest also are the tennis tournaments at the Casino, and the luncheon parties given afterward. One lady who has entertained extensively this Summer, almost every day in fact, at either luncheon or dinner, is Mrs. Vanderbilt, whose home is "The Breakers."

A WEDDING of great interest to both Boston and New York families will be that of Miss Angiena Hewlett, daughter of Mr. J. Monroe Hewlett of New York, to George E. Abbot, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Abbot of Andover, on October 3. The ceremony will be performed in the old Hewlett homestead, Rockhall, Lawrence, L. I., which has been in the family for a hundred years. Miss Hewlett, who is the granddaughter of the late Mrs. James Augustus Hewlett, has two brothers and two sisters.

THE wedding in Milton June 3 of Miss Louise Tyler, daughter of Mrs. R. Blake Tyler, to Horace Binney Montgomery, was one of great interest to social circles. The young couple are now making their home in Philadelphia.

LIEUTENANT COMMANDER WALTER S. BURKE, United States Navy, retired, and Mrs. Burke, of Cambridge and Annisquam, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Betty Burke, of the Junior League and Sewing Circle of 1921-22, to Ralph Huntington Wales, the son of Mrs. Chester Howe of Chestnut Hill. Mr. Wales graduated from Harvard in 1919. His clubs there are the Phoenix, Hasty Pudding, D. K. E., Institute of 1770, and the Speakers. His brother, Tom Wales, often called Buddy by his intimate friends, was a graduate in 1921 from Harvard, and while at college was on the football team.

HAROLD D. WALKER of Fairfield street has sailed from New York on the Savoie, Is Paris, he is to join Mrs. Walker (Corinna Searle), who, with her mother, Mrs. Charles Putnam Searle of Commonwealth avenue, sailed several weeks ago, and has been visiting in Spain and Switzerland. Mr. Walker and John T. Morse, Jr., have been keeping bachelor apartments at No. 83 Mt. Vernon street since then.

A BAZAAR and pageant, in which prominent North Shore Summer residents and others are taking active interest, is planned for Saturday, August 26. It is to be held on the Mason and Ober places, two adjoining estates on Hale street, Beverly Farms, and is for the benefit of the Beverly Farms Music School, Mrs. Henry L. Mason, who started the school, is to be in charge.

The pageant, "Little Boy Blue," written by Marian Weser (Seavey) Dexter, will be produced under her supervision, and will enlist the services of about 200 children and young people. There will be two performances, one at 3 p. m. and one at 8. After the latter there will be general dancing.

Afternoon tea is to be served on the lawn under direction of Mrs. Nathaniel Simpkins, assisted by a group of young girls. There will be music by more than twenty musicians from allo's Symphony Band of Boston, led by James Caldarwood, who is the conductor of the Beverly Farms Choral Society.

MRS. HORACE B. MONTGOMERY

Mrs. Montgomery (Louise Tyler) was a bride last June. She is now making her home in Philadelphia.

There will be fancy tables and those containing flowers, vegetables, candy, fruit and cake. The grab will be in charge of Mrs. Lyon Weyburn, Mrs. T. Jefferson Newbold and Mrs. Harold Chalifeux. Tickets may be obtained from the Beverly Farms Music School and from Mrs. Mason.

Some of the patronesses interested in the success of the event, aside from those mentioned above, include: Mrs. George Lee, Mrs. Sydney Hutchinson, Mrs. Robert Sampson, Mrs. James Todd, Mrs. Alvin Sortwell, Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Mrs. Wallace Goodrich, Mrs. Godfrey Cabot, Mrs. Henry King, Mrs. John Post, Mrs. Lloyd Nichols, Miss H. $1,000,000 FOR PEOPLE IN NEW EDISON CUT

At least $1,000,000 a year has been saved to the customers of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. as the direct result of the fight for low rates conducted by the Boston American and the City of Boston.

More than 100,000 consumers in Greater Boston will reap the benefits.

Today's announcement by the Edison of another "voluntary" reduction in rates is the fourth victory achieved by the public from the American's and the city's crusade.

PEOPLE WILL BENEFIT.

All those reductions have been made since the case against the Edison was started in the columns of this newspaper.

The first reduction came when the Edison announced it had decided to reduce its surcharge from 10 per cent. to 5 per cent.

Last March the Edison announced that it had decided to cut out the remaining 5 per cent. surcharge and also to abrogate its 5 per cent. coal clause charge. The total of that joint reduction was $500,000 a year.

Now comes the Edison and announces that on September 1 it will reduce its straight rate for electric current from 10 cents to 9½ cents per kilowatt hour. This means a reduction of $250,000 a year more—the whole total being a saving of $1,000,000 a year in favor of the consumers.

FIGHT WILL GO ON.

As a result of this campaign the Edison's rates have already been cut from 11½ to 9½ cents per kilowatt hour. The campaign is by no means at an end. The Boston American and the city of Boston are fighting for a further reduction of rates. The hearing before the State Department of Public Utilities will be resumed next month.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With "Use Mulsified"

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is very cleansing and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup of hot water, with a little warm water is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

A. F. of L. AGAINST CITY PENSION PLAN

A telegram was received today by Mayor Curley from Martin T. Joyce, secretary and treasurer of the Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor, in convention at Fitchburg, stated that the organization was almost unanimously opposed to the contributory pension plan for city employes, now before the Mayor for his approval. At the same time a petition signed by 1,406 city workers was presented to him as being in favor of the plan. His acceptance is still pending.

VAINLY SEARCH FOR BODY OF MRS. FORBES

Despite the efforts of police, citizens and relatives to find the body of Mrs. Irena Forbes, wife of Harvey D. Forbes of Melrose, who was drowned in Martin's Pond, North Reading, before the eyes of her husband and three small children, the body has not yet been recovered.

The heavy clinging mud in the shallow pond has hampered the searchers and fears are now entertained that the body may be so deep in the mud that it will be necessary to use dynamite to free it.

While the searching party, in which the husband is included, is striving to bring the body of the ill-fated woman to the surface, her mother, Mrs. Margaret McGuiness of No. 216 Folsom avenue, Melrose, is lying critically ill at her house, overcome by the tragedy.

The aged woman is under the care of a physician and none but immediate relatives are admitted to the room. Mrs. Forbes was her favorite and the first of her three daughters to marry.

The tragedy has thrown the neighborhood into gloom as the dead woman and her husband were held in highest regard being called "a couple of happy kids" by these living nearby. They were considered an ideal couple, happy in their children and their home. The home was but recently purchased.

The boat in which Mr. and Mrs. Forbes and the children were riding was a big flat-bottomed affair. This fact alone prevented the vessel from capsizing when the mother went overboard, it is believed. The fruitless search, according to North Reading police, may be caused by the fact that the husband, in his excitement, forgot the exact spot at which the tragedy occurred.

The Forbes had been married about eight years. The three children, made motherless, were Harvey, Jr., aged seven; Clayton, aged five, and Frances, aged three. The children are now living with relatives.

GOSPEL OF MATTHEW CHAPTER 8, VERSE 25

The residence of William T. Stanley, recently completed on Loring avenue, Salem, sets on a foundation carved from one of the oldest geological formations in the country, according to Professor Edward S. Morse of Peabody Academy. The rock was chosen as a foundation because scientists told Mr. Stanley that a structure built upon it could never be struck by lightning. The rock is said to be 40,000,000 years old.

Married women are eligible to enter the Boston American's big tournament in quest of the MOST CHARMING girl in Boston or vicinity. A week's free trip to Atlantic City early next month will be given the winner.

MOTHER OF THREE.

Maude Vannass of No. 24 Church street, Waverley, in nominating Mrs. Gladys D'Avellar of No. 162 Sycamore street, Watertown, expressed this sentiment. She wrote: "I consider Mrs. D'Avellar a woman of charming personality. She is the mother of three beautiful children and still retains her charming ways.

In the same mail with Mrs. D'Avellar's entry came one from a bewitching miss of fifteen—Aphrodite Christides of No. 4 Winchester street, Boston. She was nominated by Helen Christides of the same address.

Another entrant whose photograph came from the same mail bag is Miss Margaret E. Nugent, thirteen, of No. 15 Walnut street, Stoughton. She enters college in September.

Fourteen-year-old Anna M. Casey of No. 17 Mercer street, South Boston, was nominated for the week's free trip, beginning September 6, by a friend who wrote: "I desire to nominate Miss Casey for the honor of being chosen 'Miss Boston.' She is a young girl who is worthy of the title.

Each of these young women has an equal chance to be selected by the judges. The girl who is picked will be called "Miss Boston" with the additional title of "Queen of the Hub."

TWO STOWAWAY GIRLS SO GLAD TO BE HOME

New York, Aug. 17.—Weeping hysterically because they were afraid of paternal displeasure, two girl stowaways, Katherine Fleming, fourteen years old, and Annie Mullen, thirteen, returned to New York today on the White Star Liner Homeric, having gone to England on the liner Majestic, July 23.

Their tears soon gave way to smiles, however, as they rushed into the outstretched arms of their mothers.

"I'll never go on the water again," said Annie, who wears bobbed hair. "I wouldn't even go on the ferry boat if I didn't have to."

"You said it," exclaimed Katherine, whose pig tail hair extends down her back.

Both girls strenuously denied that they stowed away on the Majestic. They declared they went on board to look at the gymnasium and swimming pool. Later, when they went into a small room the door was locked behind them, they said. They kicked at the door in vain and when the door finally was opened the ship was on the broad Atlantic.

The Majestic's passengers passed the hat and raised $32.25. Out of the proceeds Annie bought a gray and white lawn dress. A woman passenger gave Katherine a black dress.

Katherine had $5.50 left and Annie $5.10.

3 SHIPS IN WITH 25,000 TONS OF BRITISH COAL

Three big steamships, the American steamer Eastern Pilot, the British steamer General Church and the Japanese steamer Taiho Maru, arrived in port today with approximately 25,000 tons of British coal. Owing to the congestion of coal laden vessels in the harbor, none of the steamships docked and their exact cargo will not be known until they enter at the Custom House. The American and British vessels loaded at Cardiff and the Jap at Newcastle.

When two days out, Captain Peterson of the Eastern Pilot found a stowaway, wanted for murder in England. He put the man in irons and in mid-ocean transferred him to a homeward bound British ship, whose captain will turn him over to the police. The Eastern Pilot is anchored down the harbor.

In addition to the British coal arriving today, the collier Abaseom arrived from Norfolk with 5,300 tons of steam coal for the Pocahontas Fuel Co.

GREATEST COAL SHAFT IN DANGER

Sydney, N. S., Aug. 17 (By Canadian Press).—The third day of the coal miners strike in Cape Breton brought no grounds for hope that the dispute would be settled at an early date.

Water is steadily rising in the pits, No. 2 pit, the largest coal shaft in the world, is in danger of complete destruction.

Another cause for grave concern is the growing shortage of coal. Old timers are predicting a long drawn out fight, with consequent hardship to all concerned.

Since the rough handling of the carload of relief workers sent down to No. 2 from Sydney last night no further attempts to place relief operators at the pumps and fans have been made. The troops, so far, have not exercised their authority. Minor hostilities have occurred between strikers and would-be strike-breakers.

Indignation at the presence of armed forces at New Aberdeen has shown itself more markedly among the war veterans, who are now offering to form a protective battalion and guarantee to protect life and property during the strike. They will not, however, interfere with the picketing at the mines.

CHILD MOURNS THE LOSS OF PET DOG

A missing dog, a lonesome little girl.

That is the story, in brief, of the sorrow that has entered the life of little Mary Murray of Jamaica Plain. For Mary had a pet, a little fox terrier, known as "Betsy." She was Mary's companion during the long months of illness that kept the little girl in bed.

Mary Murray.

And now Betsy is gone. Mary, with tear-stained eyes, is waiting for her pet's return. Mary lives at No. 24 Parkton road, Jamaica Plain. On Saturday, the little dog wandered away or was taken away. "Betsy" wore a collar that was not marked. A piece of paper with name and address, had been placed on the collar, temporarily, as "Betsy" was going on a week-end trip with some of the family.

A black patch on the left shoulder and one brown ear were outstanding features of the dog.

Will anyone who has seen "Betsy" notify Mary's family or call the Boston American.

'POLS' TO SPEAK AT VETERANS' BARBECUE

Political leaders and candidates for office from all parts of the State will speak at the barbecue which will be given by the ex-Service Men's Non-Partisan League at Caledonian Grove next Saturday. Among those who have promised to attend are Senator Lodge, Mayor Curley, Governor Cox, Attorney General Allen and District Attorney O'Brien.

Mrs. Gardes.

Mrs. Salem Gardes and Mrs. Rose Willis are leaders in the women's committee which is making arrangements for the affair. A concert is to be given by the 101st infantry band, while an extensive "midway" and street fair is also planned.

Mrs. Willis.

Mrs. James D. Tillinghast and Mrs. Alice E. Cram will also address the meeting.

Mrs. Cram ran for State Auditor on the Democratic ticket last year, and is again a candidate for that office. Mrs. Tillinghast, who lives in Cambridge, is the only woman member of the Republican State committee.

George E. Wilson, president of the League, will plead for more adequate recognition of the sacrifices made by the disabled veterans.

Rich and four other Revere citizens, who prayed for protection from large and ferocious dogs at No. 49 Walnut street, Revere, Judge Keating in equity motion of the Superior Court today ordered that all dogs but one be removed

Without holding a hearing, Judge Keating who had satisfied himself by inquiries, declared the place was not fit for a dog farm and ordered the defendants, James H. Hurley, Margaret and Ellen Wiseman, to get rid of the dogs on or before August 24. It was brought out that there are five large dogs and three puppies at the Walnut street premises

The plaintiffs, who brought a bill in equity, declared the dogs had terrorized the neighborhood, that a number of persons had been bitten, and that men were arming themselves with clubs for protection. Their wives, they said were afraid to venture on to the streets unaccompanied.

Plans to Wed

MISS ONA M. COSSKIE.
Worcester girl who admits she is to become bride of Haverhill leather manufacturer

GIRL GUEST AT DEATH PARTY TO MARRY

Worcester, Aug. 17.—Ona M. Cosskis, the only woman guest at the fatal party in Boston's Back Bay, at which Pauline Virginia Clark took poison, has taken out a license to marry.

Miss Cosskie, herself a divorcee, is planning to wed Arthur J. Crowe, a wealthy Haverhill leather manufacturer, fifteen years her senior. The young woman, who lives at No. 24 Townsend street, gave her age as twenty-eight years and her occupation as salesman. Crowe is a widower and father of several children.

The attractive Worcester girl was one of five persons present in the apartment at No. 282 Newbury street, when the Back Bay beauty [illegible] friends by drinking a poisonous [illegible] came to grief and ended in the divorce court in Boston, October 31, 1919, when the young woman was given a decree [illegible] and the right to resume her maiden name.

The other guests were Havard Wharton, Harvard athlete and son of a prominent Philadelphia family, Joseph P. Torrey, 2d, son of a millionaire Worcester manufacturer, and Otto Haldor Larsen, Norwegian student at Technology, whose suicide followed within a few days.

Miss Cosskie, who was in the kitchen with Torrey when Pauline Clark ended her sensational career, gave the first complete story of the happenings at the party. Later, accompanied by Torrey, she testified at the inquest in Boston which determined that "no living person" was responsible for the girl's death.

When reporters called at her home Miss Cosskis denied that she was to marry Crowe, but confronted with the fact that she had taken out a marriage license, admitted it was so. She would not say when the wedding is to take place.

Her first matrimonial venture came to grief and ended in the divorce court in Boston, October 31, 1919, when the young woman was given a decree [illegible] and the right to resume her maiden name.

ALLEN AGAIN BANS THORE PETITION

Attorney-General Allen today for the second time in two years, refused to certify Wendell P. Thore's petition to establish an old age pension law.

Thore a year ago filed an Initiative and Referendum petition for the immediate passage of old age pensions. Such a bill cannot be submitted to the people for their decision unless the Attorney-General certifies that it is drawn in proper form. Allen then turned down Thore's bill, saying it was unconstitutional.

Thore this year filed a constitutional amendment which declared the right of the Legislature to pass such a law. Allen today sent a letter to Thore saying he refused to certify it because it was not in proper form.

GERMANS HOLD UP FRENCH AT BORDER

Strasbourg, Aug. 17.—Travel across the German frontier is interrupted, as far as French nationals are concerned, due to the German passport authorities on the border closing their offices or finding pretexts to refuse visas. Thus far about 1,000 French travelers have been delayed by these tactics.

MOVIE AT SEA STIRS BRAVE CAPTAIN

Hark to this tale, mates. 'Tis a harrowing one; a tale of a brave tugboat skipper, who dared heavy odds to rescue beauty in distress.

The scene: Off Eastern Point, Cape Ann; the tugboat Sadie Ross steaming out of Gloucester Harbor. A full-rigged ship, flying the blue and white stripes known as the Greek flag of commerce, Cap'n Smith Ross of the tug picks up his binoculars and looks at the ship, his hair rising on his head as he sees lovely women being chased about the decks of the Greek vessels by villains of a most piratical cast.

A chief villain was waving the blunt instrument, so familiar in police reports, leaping and screaming in his minions to increase their efforts. Cap'n Ross swung the Sadie around on her heel, rang for full speed ahead and started out over the expanse of ocean separating his vessel from the Greek.

He had only four or five men on board, but they were of good old Yankee stock, and by the toplights of Satan he was going to do something about it.

As he drew near he noticed a figure hitherto unseen. It was a man in white flannels, with his cap on "hind side to," the while he peered into some kind of a box on stilts, his right hand moving in rhythmic curves. He took another look at the cruel villain and saw that the blunt instrument in his hand was a speaking trumpet.

"Hell——" said Cap'n Ross, and he reshaped his course for Boston again—"movies."

The ship is the Greek sailing ship Nemus, from Philadelphia. She will remain in the bay while the weather is good for picture taking, and then make port at Boston.

WHAT'S A WASH TUB in the Navy? Just give the boys a lotta pa.ls, a lotta scrubbing brushes, a big broad deck and any one of the seven seas and they'll make old John Chinaman look like a mud turtle. Here's a typical wash day scene aboard the Battleship Wyoming, now with the fleet at Newport, R. I. We'll leave it to their mas—don't the boys look nice when their laundry's done?

RESCUING ENTRAPPED MAN UNDER BODY OF AN OVERTURNED AUTO Truck! Photo shows how heavy motor vehicle upset at the corner of Commonwealth avenue and Newbury street when it skidded on the pavement. Traffic officers and pedestrians rescued the entrapped man just in time to save his life. As they struggled to raise the truck it momentarily threatened to give way and crush the imprisoned man beneath to death.

FATE SENT NINE TO THEIR DEATHS IN FREAK Railroad Wreck! Motor truck bumped into an automatic switch and hurled two trains together at Annadale, Mich. WEDS TYPIST WHILE ON AUTO TRIP

A pile of wedding invitations will never be sent, and a trousseau will never be worn to a wedding! Ominous as this sounds, there is no tragedy in the matter. Quite the contrary!

A romance has long been suspected between Sidney F. Hooper, of the real estate firm of Robert M. Tebbins, and Miss Catherine O'Meara, the stenographer of one of his associates, but no announcement was forthcoming. The course themselves had set the wedding date for September 6, the birthday of the bride, and were secretly making plans for a quiet wedding at the home of the bridegroom, No. 15 Foxcroft road, Winchester.

But last Saturday Mr. Hooper and his fiancee, who lived at No. 14 Oxford street, Cambridge, were motoring with the senior Hoopers, when it occurred to them that there is no time like the present.

"What's the use of waiting all that time? Let's get married today!" Mr. Hooper said, according to his breathless account of the impromptu wedding. Miss O'Meara was easily persuaded and they stopped the car and invited the astonished parents on the back seat to their wedding in Plymouth, which was the next town they would pass through.

By chance the bridegroom had the platinum wedding ring in his pocket and the marriage license which had been procured in Cambridge three weeks before. The minister at the first church the party passed must he thought it was a "lark of a wedding," according to the bride's story.

MAYOR APPROVES NEW BUILDING FEE

Departure from the usual rate of $25 as a fee for new construction of buildings in the city to that of $1 per thousand on the valuation of the work, and payment of a fee will be required when application is filed instead of when the application for work is granted, will go into effect in the building department starting September 1. This new plan was suggested to the Mayor by Building Commissioner John H. Mahoney, and approved by the Mayor today. It will materially swelling the funds of the city.

DISCHARGE JITNEY DRIVERS IN COURT

Lloyd McLean of Melrose and Albert Hoppe of Malden, two drivers for the Hart Auto Bus Line, who were arrested by the Revere police on Sunday charged with taking on and letting off passengers at unauthorized stands in that city, were discharged today in the Chelsea court. The men are charged in court that they unloaded at Lombard at a terminal beach at Revere Beach. The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway is said to have complained.

24 BARRELS OF FISH GONE; WHERE?

The Mystery of the Missing Fish" or "What Became of the Salt Mackerel" is the name of a problem play, having elements of comedy, which was staged in East Boston Court today.

The leading performer was seventeen-year-old Walter Bradley of No. 11 Acton avenue. Proprietor charged with the larceny of twenty-four barrels of salt mackerel, the property of L. Pickert Fish Company, New street, East Boston, and valued at $500.

Young Bradley is employed as a teamster by his father a contractor who was instructed to remove decayed fish and bones from the Pickert wharf, and deposit it in the Porter street dump. The elder Bradley told his son to do the work and the boy went there Saturday morning.

He loaded twenty-four barrels on to his truck and told the court that he threw them onto the dump. Monday morning employes of the fish company discovered that the barrels which had been taken contained good fish.

A warrant was obtained for young Bradley. A search of the dump failed to reveal any fish. At length a man was found who said he had hauled away ten barrels from the dump but on opening one found it contained bad fish. He threw them all off Winthrop bridge, he declared. No trace of the other barrels was found.

Young Bradley, who said he thought he took the right barrels, pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,000 until next Thursday. In the meantime the hunt for the fish will continue.

DENIES HE DROVE AWAY AFTER CRASH

John C. Harrington of No. 5 Hancock street, Everett, pleaded not guilty when he was arraigned in the Chelsea Court today on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident without identifying himself to the police after an auto accident. His case was continued until September 6. Harrington's auto, the police allege, ran into a horse wagon today and injured the driver, Fred Pennet of Somerville. The collision occurred in front of the Chelsea Yacht Club.

APPEALS $100 FINE FOR AUTO VIOLATION

Daniel Crowley of Roxbury, 52 years old, appeared in the Chelsea Court today charged with being drunk and with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Dan was discharged on the drunk charge, but was fined $10 on the charge of operating while under the influence. He appealed and was held in $300.

WILL, TWO INCHES BY FOUR, IS FILED

A scrap of paper, two by four inches, was filed at East Cambridge Probate Court. It was the smallest will ever filed in Middlesex County, and gave the $3,500 effects of Dominic Barese of Concord to his wife, Mary.

FURNITURE MEN IN PEMBERTON FROLIC

"You are here on a holiday."

The spirit of this message uttered by Governor Cox was carried out to the full by the 200 members of the Home Furnishers' Association of Massachusetts, gathered for their tenth annual outing at Pemberton.

An elaborate dinner was ready as soon as the furniture men stepped off the 12:15 Nantasket steamer from Boston.

The Governor entered just as the ice cream was being served. He acknowledged the enthusiastic greeting and shortly afterwards launched into his speech.

"Business men should concern themselves more with the business of government, they should be directly interested in the maintenance of good government. It will mean greater progress," said the State's chief executive.

Joseph E. Warner, candidate for lieutenant governor, and Henry L. Kincade, candidate for the Senate from Norfolk County, also spoke.

While the dinner was in progress a popularity contest was held. Frank Cotton, local representative of the Grand Rapids decked manufacturer was voted the most popular salesman. He was given a large silver cup. Of the long schedule of athletic events only a few could be carried out before daylight waned. The Mafera brothers, five of them, owners of the American Spring Bed Company of Boston, were the heroes of the sport contests.

The committee in charge of the outing included Bernard A. McMahon, chairman; Victor Heath of the Ferdinand Company, and Felix Smith of Smith Brothers.

Men representing furniture companies whose names are household words were at every turn. Charles E. Osgood, first president of the Home Furnishers' Association, Frank Ferdinand, president of the Ferdinand Company; J. Stern of Summerfield's, Henry L. Kincaide, Alonzo K. Yost and scores of others.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Now investigating conditions in the West.

Here is something that ought to gratify every American.

All over the West, even the most humble hamlet usually boasts a very substantial school.

At many and many a small town the school is by far the most imposing building. Dwellings and stores and churches may be all made of wood, but the school stands out impressively, built of brick.

* * *

One wonders where the children can come from to fill schools in many of the tiny villages. Where the school building is large enough to hold several times the entire population of the place. When you begin to ask questions you learn that the ubiquitous motor car is playing a notable part in furthering education in the democracy. The more distant farmers bring their children to school by automobile and the less distant scholars are gathered up by big special buses.

My city dwellers often hear the remark—if we do not make it our business—that the church doesn't put any figure any more.

A tour throughout the land dispels this notion. I don't think I have seen one dilapidated, neglected-looking church in any small community between the Eastern States and the Pacific coast. Time and time again you'll cast your eye across the far-spreading rural scene and in the distance the church spire that stands up and out is a church steeple.

I don't know how this may impress you, but I must say that I find myself feeling, deep down in my heart, a calmer, a stronger, a deeper faith in the future of this Commonwealth since I've realized the piece accomplished among the real people of the land by the church and the school.

A people that gives first place to facilities for worship and education is not decaying, but is laying foundations sound and deep and lasting.

I hope in later articles to tell something of the towering business men who are doing big things in this part of the world.

Facts About Coppers.

To D. L. Winchester.—Capital outstanding of coppers about which you ask, with pars given in parentheses, follows: Anaconda ($50), $116,582,500; Utah ($100), $18,244,000; United Verde Extension ($50, $525,000, Nevada Consolidated ($5), $9,997,256; Mother Lode Coalition (no par), 2,500,000 shares, and Magma ($5), 1,200,000.

Like figures on the gold and silver stocks are: Nipissing ($5, $6,500,000; McKinley Darragh ($1), $1,000,000, and Tonopah Extension ($1), 1,482,801.

Union Pacific

Union Pacific was among issues making a new high Wednesday. Winder states the case clearly when he says: "Union Pacific has made a series of a market order. This is a holding company and also a $400,000,000 holding company. In addition to $15,000,000 government bonds it owns $70,000,000 railroad stocks and $115,000,000 railroad bonds—par values. The railroad stocks and bonds are carried at $190,000,000, against which $50,000,000 has been written off.

"This gives it, in a conservative way, a chance to make money from its own securities and from the use of its money. If it is not entitled to the company should be. The market in the past year or so has paid it a premium of over 3.0 a share for the stock."

SAYS GOVERNOR IS IN ERROR ON FIGHT

Michigan City, Ind., Aug. 17.—"There is nothing left for us to do but let the law [illegible] Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion, made the statement tonight [illegible] Governor McCray that the scheduled ten-round no-decision bout between Jack Dempsey and Bill Brennan on Labor Day would not be permitted. The Governor announced that he was convinced that the men were to fight and not appear in a boxing exhibition.

Despite the executive's decree, William Austin, county sheriff, whose duty it is to see that the Governor's actions are carried out, indicated that the fight would proceed adding

"My understanding with the Governor is that I would not permit any fight for a decision by the referee to be staged in Michigan City [illegible] and will my understanding"

The Governor's decision was a complete surprise to the promoters of the match, Floyd Fitzsimmons. The fighters, their managers and Fitzsimmons had several conferences with officials at Indianapolis recently and they were given to understand that there would be no interference.

Sheriff at Odds With Governor

Indianapolis, Aug 17 Interest in the controversy over the booking of the proposed Jack Dempsey Bill Brennan fight at Michigan City on Labor Day, today switched to La Porte County, following the announcement by Governor McCray that he would give officials of that county until Friday to order the abandonment of the bout. The Governor ordered that unless the county officials take action by that time he will order the contest stopped

To date officials at Michigan City have given no indication that they will take action to prohibit the holding of the contest On the other hand they have declared they have no intention of stopping the bout Sheriff William E. Austin of Laporte county, in a statement yesterday, declared that as far as he was concerned the bout would go on as scheduled He said that the contest was to be a ten round no decision exhibition and not a prize fight, and added that such an exhibition was entirely legal Other county officials were reported to have taken a similar stand.

The bout is being held under the auspices of the American Legion and it was pointed out by those in touch with the situation that officials of that organization may confer with the Governor regarding his stand on the proposed bout Floyd Fitzsimmons one of the promoters of the match, was in Indianapolis yesterday for a conference with the Governor, but following the meeting he would make no statement

In the meantime both Dempsey and Brennan are reported [illegible] according with their training rolling on the outcome on the controversy.

Dempsey Continues Training for Bout.

DEMPSEY-BRENNAN MATCH WILL BE STAGED IN THE EAST

NEW YORK OR JERSEY TO GET BIG BOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

The Dempsey-Brennan bout will be staged in New York or New Jersey now that Governor Warren T. McCray has barred the match in Indiana. Tex Rickard is the master mind behind the Dempsey-Brennan bout, although the sporting world believed the affair was to be held under the direction of Floyd Fitzsimmons.

The issue is a part of the build-up for the Dempsey-Wills battle which will take place some time next year. Rickard plans to have the champion battle Brennan and Jess Willard before he stakes his crown into the ring in a match with Wills.

The negro title holder is also going to pick up all the easy money in sight. At Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, next Monday night he is billed to collide with Buddy Jackson, an unknown, in a fifteen-round affair. The two camps have been hammering away at their respective pets in trying to convince the static world that Jackson is a danger to capture the Wills title.

They claim that Buddy has won a flock of fights in Europe and South America. May we ask what heavyweight of prominence is there in Europe or South America with the exception of Georges Carpentier?

But as Wills is in the grain business over in Michigan he probably desires a little more action before he can buy a couple of more apartment blocks. After the Jackson bout, the Mullins army will probably take on two or three other heavyweights so that he will be ready when the bout with Dempsey is staged.

Dempsey Is Having Hard Time Keeping Busy.

Dempsey, unlike Benny Leonard, is experiencing all kinds of trouble keeping busy in the ring. He has not fought since he knocked out Carpenter at Jersey City a year ago Last Fourth of July.

This is not the champion's fault. Unlike most title holders he has not dodged a single opponent. He has announced that he would battle any man named by the public. But wherever he goes Dempsey will be a topple over attraction. A good battle with the Argentine Adonis would bring into the public coffers a big wad of jack. The latter two of Dempsey's plans.

It was different in the days of John L. Sullivan. True there was no champion to run from, but some of the famous Boston heavyweights usually didn't have to go begging for a chance to fight.

UMP'S DECISION DOESN'T MAKE HIT AT ALL

"Tanny" White, East Boston's favorite umpire, pulled a big league decision at South Boston, which came far from making a hit with anybody connected with Twilight baseball. "His Umps" surprised everybody by calling the game in the seventh inning after Dorchester had taken its turn at the bat. While twilight was fast approaching, the rest of the game might have been played. South Boston was leading, 3 to 2.

Joe Norton, manager of South Boston, set up a screech that will be heard for the rest of the season. Joe had just got started accepting contributions and was forced to cancel his important mission before getting half through the crowd. Harry Bailey and his Dorchester athletes figure that they were deprived of a chance of carrying the ball game, and were loud in their criticism of the decision.

The play itself wasn't one which would greatly enthuse over. The players and spectators alike, acted as though they were more concerned about the prospects of a visit from that much desired breeze which has been missing during the past few days.

Hits by "Gunny" Morris, Connelly and Ada Hart gave Dorchester a pair of runs in the second.

South Boston took the lead in the fourth when successive singles by Jefferson Gill, Skahan and White netted three tallies.

Casino Query

CASINO — The following is the ruling by Hoyle regarding your play:

BUILDING—A player may have in his hand less than the limit of eight and add to a card on the table whose total is a card in his hand. This is called building. Illustration: If the player's hand has a 7 and a 5 and the table has a 2 and a 6 on the table, he may take either the 7 and 2 or the 5 and 6 and build a 9, provided that those two cards cannot be separated from the other cards on the table. Example: If the player's hand has a 7 and a 5 and the table has a 2 and a 6 and a 9, he may take the 7 and 2 and build a 9 and the 5 and 6 and build a 11, but he cannot take the 7 and 2 and the 5 and 6 and build a 9 and an 11 at the same time. Some players insist that a player cannot increase his own build in this manner even if he has both the cards for the first and last build, but there is no reason why a player should be denied a privilege which is allowed to his opponent. If one player sees legitimately only a 9 he has a build he may do as provided in the paper card.

WILLS BATTLES WITH BUDDY JACKSON

Harry Wills the New Orleans Panther, believes he is going to fight Jack Dempsey for the latter's title some fine afternoon. Harry has articles to that effect. Harry also believes that the scrap won't take place before many months pass o'er us. He thinks [illegible] about time to get out and do some battling. Generally 'tis very hard to coax a fight or to match with the big colored marvel, but at this writing Wills has two fights on the fire.

His first appearance as the challenger of Jack Dempsey will be staged Monday night at the Newark Armory, Newark, N. J. Over in that well known arena Wills will fight "Buddy" Jackson twelve rounds, and if "Buddy" wins he will be known as the colored heavyweight champion of the world.

Frankly, he is of the opinion that he will take Wills into camp, and quite a few agree with the newcomer. Jackson is no slouch of a battler, for he record shows thirty-four knockouts of thirty-eight battles.

This bout will be the headliner of a star show under the auspices of the Colored Elks. A big convention of the order was in Newark and the glad-rags will battle before a monster crowd.

Should Wills finish his scrap he will immediately [illegible] battle at Ebbets Field with Tom Jackson. LANDIS PRAISES GIANTS' MANAGER FOR BARRING PITCHER

DOUGLAS ACTION A BOOST FOR McGRAW

By Universal Service.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 17.—Suffering the blacklisting from organized baseball of Phil Douglas, star pitcher of the New York Giants, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, today made plain that not a bit of scandal would be permitted to taint the national game—that cash apart was more essential than any number of dollars.

In congratulating the New York Club for exposing the offer of their leading hurler to quit the Giants providing money was forthcoming from a rival team, Judge Landis said:

"For months, the New York Club has imperiled its pennant chances by exposing Douglas. The club has now exercised proper care since there is nothing for me to do. I cannot hear ill rumors. In cases where a player is guilty of crooked work I do not expect an appeal to me. If he frequents poolrooms I do not expect an appeal to me. If he frequents poolrooms I do not expect an appeal to me. I do not touch of the charges made by Manager McGraw."

Douglas was the Giants leading pitcher up to about a month ago when he strayed from the straight and narrow path. He was replaced by Watson, Jesse Barnes and Fred Anderson, who won victories and four defeats while he believed himself.

It was while Douglas was hurling the greatest brand of ball that the Giants were showing their way to the championship when the news broke that Douglas was implicated in baseball scandal. Douglas was the only player who was known to have received money from Cincinnati gamblers. Douglas admitted that he had received $500 from Hal Chase, Cincinnati first baseman, but claimed that he had returned the money to Chase.

Douglas was the first baseball player to be barred from baseball since the Chicago White Sox players were banished for their participation in the world's series scandal of 1919

Desert Love

By Joan Conquest

She trusted herself with a Sheik in the lonely desert—

WOULD YOU?

Jill Carden, a beautiful and daring young English girl, brought up in a conventional home, burns her bridges behind her and lives in an oasis, far from her own race, for the love of an Arab chief. She was seventeen, motherless and much sought after by reason of her great wealth, which, however, disappeared when her father's will was read. After getting a position as traveling companion she finds herself at Suez. She gets her first glimpse of Hahmed, the Camel King, and tosses a coin to decide whether she shall speak to him or go back to England. It falls heads and she is committed to the Sheik and the desert.

THREE times Jill had been in actual danger of death: once when her horse bolted, making straight for the cliffs a short way ahead; another time when the receding tide had caught her, pulling her slowly out to sea, and never a boat in sight; and again when taking a pre-breakfast stroll on the Col di Tenda, she had encountered a fugitive of the law desperately making for the frontier, who, half crazed with fear, sleeplessness, and hunger, literally at the point of an exceedingly sharp knife had demanded money, or bracelet, in fact anything which could be transformed into a mattress, and coffee, polenta, cigarette or succulent frittata.

After each of the preceding incidents she had tried to analyze her utter want of feeling, her inability to recognize danger, her almost placid confidence in an ultimate happy ending.

"It doesn't seem to be me, Dada," she had once explained, or tried to explain, to her father, who, in the depths of an armchair and the Sporting News, had no more idea of what she was talking about than the man in the moon. . . . "I seem to be standing quite to myself, looking at myself. A sort of something seems to come right down" stutting the dancer right away from me. I know I'm in it and I've to get out of it, but though I pulled Annie for all I knew, and swam for all I was worth to reach Rock Point and bucked it to prodigy out of losing Monsoon's bridge set, I kind of did it not pain ably, not with any intention of putting things right, for I knew I was not going to die that time, because I'm sure that I shall know when I've got to die . . . understand, Dada?"

To which Dada had replied:

"Quite so, my dear, quite so! Personally I don't see how it could be otherwise. I agree with every word you say" patting his red setter's head, which in the fire of her fondly believed to be his daughter's

And so it was now as she sat under the African moon, whilst little rings and puffs of smoke helped to irritate the insects encircling the leaves of the creeper. She seemed to be standing on the other side of a wall, watching the outcome of the tossing of a silver coin.

"I've had a perfectly awful day," she announced with a ripple of genuine amusement in her voice as she proceeded quite unconcernedly to recount the doings of the last few hours

"So naturally I was followed from the restaurant," she went on after a moment's pause, "and my bag was so heavy, and I was absolutely hot, and only just man aged to give the man the slip by hiding behind a half-open door, painted bright blue of all colors."

"Allah!" murmured Hahmed. "An English girl hiding in a house with a blue door!"

"But," she went on, having for some unknown reason omitted the dance episode from her narrative "that wasn't the worst part —and continued, quite unconcernedly, to give a detailed account of the night's happenings. Whilst she was speaking the Arab moved nearer until he stood over her; there was neither shadow nor frown upon the fine face, or movement of lip or hand, but the air seemed to throb with the intensity of the white-hot race within him.

"By Allah!" he said quite gently, as he took the emerald ring Jill held out. "I do not need this, for behold for many years I have known of the doings of this thing of whom you speak And yet so great has been his cunning, that until tonight I have never been able to lay hands upon him. His guilt But tomorrow will down a brighter day for Egypt, in that she will be rid of one of her greatest evils And were you not afraid?"

Jill smiled up into the eyes fixed with love, plus worship, plus reverence, upon her. "If Oh! no! Why should I be when I am supposed to be one of the finest shots in Europe? Are you going to kill him?"

"He will be dead ere the sun rises, and I beg you to forgive me if I leave you for a while, for I must go to give orders as to his death."

Jill's thoughts can be most aptly described as tumultuous, but her smile was a festival of youth as she watched the Arab, in whom she had put her trust, walk up the long avenue, stop and clap his hands

She could hear no word of the orders given to the servant, who ran from out a clump of trees to kneel at his master's feet, but she guessed that it was the engraven emerald ring which passed from one to the other to be hidden in the servant's turban; and she felt a wave of absolute satisfaction sweep through her whole being at the thought of the man's death before the dawn.

At which instant she mentally shook herself because that the young tree of her existence, in protruding shooting out in all directions within the space of a few hours, would require the sharp edge of a pruning knife if it was to be kept to the merest outline of the shape common to ordinary life she had led up to now.

"It is well! He dies before the dawn!" announced the Arab prosaically, as he came towards this woman who, on the eves of a new life which might, for all she knew, bring ruin, despair, or even death in its wake, could so tranquilly talk of the risks she had already encountered in the course of the first few steps she had taken upon the path she had chosen to follow.

"And tell me, O woman, whose courage causes me to marvel, how you happily escaped from the house of few windows and but one apparent door and you find your way to the desert?"

"Oh that said Jill, as she sat with her hands about her knees and her face upturned to the moon which threw no deep shadow from the hut It in a room the upper part of her face made of the deep eyes a mystery and a dreamy quietness of the red mouth Amongst other things I have learned to guide myself by the stars though I'm positive they come over here I had guessed that has come there with we have spoken of. They said that away the desert lay. I took over the quarter in which the waiting-maid told me lay your house."

"You replied the man who, though he knew the West so well was secretly wondering at the trust in a chance which he was to a woman on the edge of something unknown to friends, perhaps to enemy, and of danger, in that unconsciously of hatred that might instill itself into the soul of any one right over my chest dwelt I, and the touch of wonderful hair, ing from the waist stayed through the long fingers as words of prayer fell softly on the perfumed air.

The girl got up and walked over to the camels.

"So I followed my star and suddenly found myself at the gates! Is that my shop of the desert—and what a beautiful coat, the dear thing," staring back as the dear thing turned its head suddenly, bared its teeth and snarled.

"Don't be afraid, she is always nervous with strangers, also is she a little spoilt, being the fastest and most perfect Bactrian camel in the whole of Egypt and Arabia. Her pedigree, on parchment embossed with gold, goes back almost to Ismael, and is kept in a Mill-wall safe in my oasis, which shows that East does meet West occasionally. She has, up to tonight, known no rider but me, and is used only for short journeys of about seven days; you see these two-humped beasts can only go three days with comfort without a drink, but their pace is so smooth that it almost induces one to sleep Also Taffadais, which means welcome, a name given to her after her mother had foaled three hecamels, has a special guard both day and night, for there are many who covet her, for she is the queen of camels, with her hood and breeding enhanced by many years of training and special treatment But alas! though her coat is as silk, the cushions of her feet are without fault, and her teeth unblemished ivory, her manners are small indeed and her indifference to danger unpardonable. I have learned to guide myself by the stars though I'm positive they come over here I had guessed that has come there with we have spoken of. They said that away the desert lay. I took over the quarter in which the waiting-maid told me lay your house."

"You replied the man who, though he knew the West so well was secretly wondering at the trust in a chance which he was to a woman on the edge of something unknown to friends, perhaps to enemy, and of danger, in that unconsciously of hatred that might instill itself into the soul of any one right over my chest dwelt I, and the touch of wonderful hair, ing from the waist stayed through the tremendous width of shoulder, the slimness of the waist, and the muscular leanness of the whole body.

And Jill sat down with a suddenness surprising in so controlled a person, and to his a sudden rush of rose color which swept uncontrollably from chin to brow, extended another cigarette from the Russian case

"Simon Artz," I am sure! May I not offer you one of mine? They are all made especially and only for me And do you prise the case? No?"

As the girl shook her head he took the wooden trifle from her, closed his hand gently, and, crushing it to matchwood, dropped it soundless y on the sand

And when Hahmed, the Arab, had finished speaking, Jill Carden, the English girl, understood that with her only rested the decision, that even now, at the eleventh hour, she was still absolutely free to go

On one side the gates waited the man who would take her wherever she asked to be taken home At the first the camels route to take her back to the protection of the mission

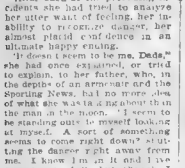
WHEN A GIRL MARRIES—BY ANN LISLE

"I'M so sorry, Mrs. Harrison, I've been trying to get you over since about 11. But no one knew where to find you. Mr Lacy was called uptown to have a conference with the president of the Steel Trust and won't be back until 4:30 or 5. I tried to reach you——"



I'M SO SORRY, MRS HARRISON, I'VE BEEN TRYING TO GET YOU—

With a smile assumed his flow of words.

This is just what I'm looking for—the exact kind of girl I had pictured in the face of his astonishment. "I want to do some work on my own and if you'll let me use a desk, I'll be perfectly happy."

"I'll see what Mr Lacy's secle," he said the name to low—I knew he'd feel as if that were a small attempt to make up for keeping you wait.... no long——"

It was long the sabbage point of his own desk to it I guessed Mr Lacy when he got rid of about. He came in with a very cold expression under the boyish grin which lighted his plain, strong face.

"Young Harvey tells me you've been waiting here period in. I'll able vote I'm sorry I was called now I'm sorry it is so, so much ten of fifteen more years more than I find the old saying of getting. He has a temper and I don't like one to be gone from her a minute after me. And I came to see you on business, for the ladies' stuff. Mr Lacy and I set me finish up the with the boy

Of course," I agreed warmed by the humanness of it.

Then I returned to working over the puzzling details of my copy. When Mr. Lacy came back to his private office, where young Harvey had stalled me, he insisted on going over the advertisements on which I was working. A word here, a suggestion there, a bit of discussion in another place and the pages were straightened out I to look up with a smile of gratitude and relief.

"By Jove! It's late. You look mighty tired, Mrs. Harrison. This has been a long day for you," cried Mr Lacy. "You mustn't do another stroke of work without having some good hot food first. Let's run out and have dinner and then finish the job. How about it?"

His smile was as boyish and engaging as Neal's. It revealed beautiful, strong, white teeth and crinkled his eyes at the corners. His voice was friendly and sturdy and strong. his enthusiasm infectious.

"I'd like to ex" I said. "I appreciate your asking me, but I can't accept. You see, Mr. Lacy, I'm an old fashioned married woman an ——

"I'm sorry"—— he broke in, genuine contrition. "I'm sorry— you can't go. And I hope you don't mind my asking you—the wife I did——"

"I don't mind asking me—the way you did," I acknowledged. "I'm sorry I can't go

It was true. I was sorry. But as I said it I wondered why I should want to go out to dine with Mr Lacy. Why did I regret that I couldn't go?

"Now for the Derringforth stuff said Mr Lacy in an impersonal business tone

His gaze no sign of resentment at his refusal, or a boyish regret in dne which I found he showed no further disappointment of the matter No I couldn't carry but the puzzling inquiry that possessed me to explain to him that I knew I was old-fashioned and that I hoped he didn't feel there was anything personal in my refusal. I couldn't understand my own wish to justify an attitude which I knew to be right.

For a minute or two I couldn't get my mind down to business again. It took an effort of will to come back to a consideration of the matter I was and were. And I was annoyed at myself for going the dinner invitation a second time.

Then I was conscious of the like- ... soothed drawling voice saying:

"So that's a 10 per cent increase over yesterday's sales. I think we can afford to be encouraged."

"Yes." I repeated glad of an outlet for the energy which I thought must show, "enough work of an ordinary hard woman. "It was you who read and that my copy was not and up and I wanted in a way to appeal to the right persons. It was so when I dared out how to display it so it would reach the public which shops in the neighborhood of the Derringforth stores. You thanked away fearlessly and put my stuff in the headline class. So if the Derringforth campaign gets over it less than no time now—as I've an idea it will—don't you try to share the credit with me"

"Well, if it fails I'm going to put some of the blame on you. So I don't see why you should't share the credit of our collaboration," drawled Mr Lacy with a chuckle at the end of his words.

"It won't fail!" I declared

"No, it won't," replied Mr. Lacy, his eyes flashing purposefully and his voice deepening to the firm stability which probably had much more to do with advancing him to his present position than the friendly boyishness which reminds me of Neal. "I think our collaboration has a lot of points in its favor. You're a wonder at gathering material and doping out original ways of presenting it. All it ever needs is a bit of editing. There's no reason to expect you to—pack a masculine wallop—yet. A few years in the advertising game came in handy—to show a fellow how to drive home his points

"You've more to go on than years of experience," I answered, thoughtfully. "You've a viewpoint and a wonderful grasp of human nature."

Why Castoria?

YEARS ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupify the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

"Mary" ROMANCE OF A BOSTON BUSINESS GIRL

Start This New Story Today

MARY KELLY, a Boston girl, twenty-one and pretty, is picked as private secretary to HALL DAWSON, a promoter. Instinctively she fears the man, but brushes the feeling aside with the thought that she is being prudish. During her first week Dawson, in the midst of a big deal, is a dynamo of energy. It is finally carried through successfully and Dawson takes her on an auto trip to a suburb, where he is to complete the details. Returning they stop at Ferncroft Inn for dinner and run into MRS. HALL DAWSON. Back at the office she finds an envelope from Dawson with a check for $100 for her part in helping make the deal a success. Mary goes to her sister, JUNE KELLY, for advice. June tells her Hall is evidently only trying to show his appreciation of her efforts and Mary goes back to the office determined to let things work themselves out. But Hall takes things in his own hands at once. Now go on with the story.

By ELENORE MEHERIN

"MR. DAWSON'S worrying about it," I thought. "It's all past. I wonder what he said to his wife about our lunch together?"

"I'll tell you how it is, Mary." His voice, like a rude hook, jerked me back to the office. "You're valuable to me. There's a future for you in the job. You bring me luck. I wanta keep you interested. That's how I hit on the bonus idea."

I felt ashamed of my suspicions.

I was a business asset—nothing more!

What a silly I was!

The check was just an acknowledgement—a payment for services. I would keep it. With sudden feeling of gladness I realized how much I wanted it—the lovely silk things I could buy with it. There would be more checks.

I began to dream of the day when I would have $300, maybe $400 a month. I cut out oblong pieces of paper and typed on them "Mary Kelly, Promoter." It gave me a thrill of pride when I looked at it.

"Mary, take a look at these maps. There's the city of New Dawson.

"You and I are going to make that city hum in the next few months. By golly, if we put this deal through, my fortune's made. You'll get a fat divvy.

"I bought that tract of land, Mary, ten years ago, rented it out in small home sites. Now this big oil boom springs up next door to me. My lots go sky high."

That night Dawson went to Oklahoma. For the next five months he worked like a slave and rarely even communicated with his Boston office. He turned the running of his private affairs over to my charge.

A new life, nervous, expectant, throbbing with adventure opened to me. I felt myself launched on a brilliant career. I pictured Dawson's inviting me to become his partner.

I counted on the bonus I would get for these months of grilling toil.

One morning I got my "divvy." Dawson came in, exuberant, tingling with pride.

"Aladdin did it, girlie. New Dawson's on the map!" He caught my eye and turned me round. "Gad, what a girl you are, Mary—the biggest trump in the pack. Couldn't get by without you. Now I'll sit back and take in the kale."

He got up and put on his hat. "Stick around, Mary. I'm coming back later. There that's yours." He dropped an envelope on my desk.

I had a pleasant sense of wealth as I took it up. When it lay before me I couldn't believe the figures. I looked at it again and again. He must have made a mistake. A cold fury of indignation seized me. The check was for $30.

Thirty dollars after five months of feverish activity days, nights even Sundays—that made my salary about $118 a month. I knew scores of girls that got more than that. I was worth $250 for nothing.

"A future in the business! Valuable to him!"

He must think it an honor to work for him. I decided to quit; to tell him what I thought. The door opened.

"Mr. Dawson, what do you mean by this?" I turned round angrily, the check in my hand.

Not Dawson but his wife was coming towards me. It was the first time I had seen her since that day at Uncle Tom's.

"Is Mr. Dawson in, Miss Kelly?" she asked in a low, gracious tone.

"No, but he left word he would return later."

She took a chair not four feet from me. She was going to talk. I would have to answer her.

"You've been working very hard, Miss Kelly?"

"Hard enough," I answered.

"Mr. Dawson tells me you love the work; you take such an interest in his plans." She was scrutinizing me; studying my face as though she sought to read my mind. It made me uncomfortable.

"I do the best I can," I answered.

"It's so unusual for a girl to be really interested in work. Most of them look forward to marriage.

"You're valuable to me, Mary," said Dawson. "There's a future here."

I suppose you'll be leaving one of these days?"

Her questions baffled me. I felt that she was setting a trap for me. "I don't think of marriage."

"Oh," she smiled. "Are you of the ultra-moderns—you don't believe in the marriage tie?"

I stepped into the trap. I felt my face burning as though she had accused me of some sin.

"I mean nothing of the kind. I think there is nothing more beautiful than a true marriage!"

"When is a marriage 'true'?" She was mocking me. I looked up to find a cynical smile on her chiseled lips.

"What do you mean by 'true'?" she repeated.

"I suppose I meant love," I said.

"Then we'd have to permit a new marriage every time we had a new love! How preposterous, Miss Kelly. A girl is a fool to wait for love. She should marry for a home. There is her sphere. Women are intruders in the business world. There are too many temptations in offices for young girls."

"I've been working six years and I haven't met temptations." I retorted rather hotly. "I don't believe the average girl does, either. A man doesn't bother a girl unless she courts it."

I didn't dream then how those words were to indict me.

"Oh," she mused, "you believe that? But anyway," she hurried on, "a girl doesn't belong in business. She can't earn the salary a man does."

"She can't collect it, you mean" The paltry check was lying before me. In an angry urge I picked it up; I started to call her of it. Her own haste to continue saved me that folly.

"No," her tone was emphatic. "A salary of $100 or $125 is the limit of a girl's earning power. Even then she is only valuable as a tool for some man's ambition."

"How beguiling you are, Miss Kelly! We've talked half an hour. Would you give me a bit of paper? I want to leave a note for Mr. Dawson."

I watched her graceful form as she wrote. Was she curious about me or had she just chanced to talk as she did?

"Good-by, Miss Kelly. How I have enjoyed you!" I hadn't enjoyed her. I felt restless, vaguely tormented. It was half past four. I took the check and went out. I was going to spend every cent of it.

"Miss Kelly, promoter—what a joke!" I thought it should be "Mary Kelly, tool for Hall Dawson."

June caught the lovely thing rapturously in her hands. "Mary, how dared you! Such extravagance!" Her eyes filled. "What a love you are Mary! It makes me feel selfish. I have joy enough. You worked too hard to get this. Oh, Mary, you're just missing everything. Why can't you see it that way?"

It wasn't June that opened my eyes, but a little incident that happened at the office a few days later.

The magic circle I had drawn about Hall Dawson vanished the day his wife stepped across it. The romance, the vivid stir throbbing within that are were gone.

I saw Hall Dawson as he was. I was but one drop of oil among thousands that he would absorb.

A career for me? With shocking bitterness I realized I had no more chance than Middie. I was really Nobody in Hall Dawson's office.

Was it his wife or the check that niggardly $30 that aroused me? Both, perhaps. Over my thoughts centred on her. I could not get her out of my mind. The more I dwelt upon it, the more uneasy I became. I went over her words. They were steeped in sarcasm.

Had she any motive or was it but the smug superiority the parasite always flaunts before the girl who works?

I wondered how much she knew of Dawson's business affairs. She had a low opinion of a girl's ability. Did she know my salary, or was she throwing out bait; trying to tease information from me?

What ideas she had! A girl should marry to escape temptation in offices? Did she think there was temptation in every office? In her husband's? Did she think it was him and not the work that interested me? Had she come purposely to put these humiliating questions?

Was it true that all girls disliked their work—that they were all hoping for marriage as Mrs. Dawson seemed to believe? I knew what June thought. I became interested in Middie, in Iris Hale. I wanted their opinion. I asked them one noontime.

The work was light now, anyway. Dawson had been called south the very day he had given me the check. I hadn't seen him since his wife's visit.

LANDRU'S LOVE CRIMES

By William Le Queux

"I KNOW, gentlemen," said Landru, "why you have come. There is no need to tell me. I am an innocent man, but I will die bravely. It certainly is not my fault, and I forgive you."

Landru placed himself in position so that one of Lieblier's assistants could cut away his shirt collar and trim his hair behind. "Don't cut my beard," was the only request he made. The man, at a sign from the executioner, merely trimmed it.

The customary glass of rum and the last cigarette were waved politely aside.

"I do not need them to die bravely," said Landru.

After being closeted a few minutes with the chaplain, Landru announced that, in order not to keep the magistrates waiting, he preferred not to wait for mass. The signing of the prison register for the last time and the final adjustment of the prisoner's hands behind his back took barely a minute more.

Chevalry facing the prison gate were seated stiffly on their horses with sabres drawn. A hundred yards distant on the other side were other mounted troops, and the infantry, with fixed bayonets, were standing to attention, and all around a dense mob to see the last of "Bluebeard."

Then, haggardly framed against the opened door, Landru appeared," says the special correspondent of the Daily Mail, who was present. He was dressed in trousers and white shirt cut close to the neck, and his pale face and his bald head gleamed death-white in the light of dawn. He bore himself bravely, with head erect and bearded chin thrust forward in the attitude so familiar during his trial.

He paused for a minute and lent on his counsel, who kissed him and whispered "He brave." Then, erect once more, he embraced the cross held to him by the priest, and, facing the guillotine just four paces from him, stepped forward, held on either side by two of the executioner's men. His feet had barely touched the plank when he muttered almost to himself his last words: "I will be brave."

With a crash the knife fell. Three seconds had not elapsed from the opening of the prison gates.

And such is the amazing and gruesome end of the cruel and heartless assassin, the modern "Bluebeard," who, bald, ugly and bearded, attracted, it is known, no fewer than 200 women. The Surete fix the actual number at 283.

A curious and mysterious circumstance occurred three days after the Court of Cassation had given its decision. Maitre Moro-Giafferi received a letter signed by one Hector Vigoureaux, stating that he was passing through that at midnight, three days after the cemetery at Gambais—which is quite close to "The Hermitage," with only a field between—when he saw an Hiot, well-known in the district, whom he referred to as "Y——," the son of a well-known local family—who had since died—go to a corner of the house, taken from an old grave, were lying, and, by the aid of a lantern select some fragments, place them in a box, and carry them to Landru's garden. To relieve his conscience, the writer now made the statement, and also enclosed a plan of the villa, the cemetery, and the route taken by the Hiots.

Here it is—the big new package

IN answer to thousands of women the country over who are using Rinso we have brought out this big new package.

Millions of women who soak their clothes have found that just soaking in Rinso loosens all the dirt. On the places where the dirt is actually ground-in they rub a little dry Rinso, and even this dirt rinses out.

For those who prefer to boil their white cottons there is nothing so good as Rinso. Just pour enough Rinso solution into the boiler to give you the suds you like.

Washing machine owners use Rinso because with it they don't have to rub even the places that used to need special attention.

Rinso is made by the largest soap makers in the world. For the family wash it is as wonderful as Lux is for fine things. Ask your grocer today for the big new package. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

Rinso takes the place of bar soap

Shrimp Misses Something Really Worth While

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By FRIEDA DAVIS

AT the Modern and Beacon theatres this week you can see the youngest producer on record, and a girl at that, a "mere slip of a girl," as Merton of the Movies would say. Margery Wilson wrote "Insinuation," chose the cast, made all the production arrangements, directed the story, and then starred in it. Now she is "carrying on" as the business genius behind the exhibition of the finished product. And she does it all as casually as the girl next door walks down to get an ice cream soda.

Last Summer Miss Wilson visited friends in Vermont. She looked over the scenery and fully approved. She approved so strongly that she decided to take pictures of it and put a story into the pictures. Result: "Insinuation." She took a company to Randolph, Vt., brought along a truckload of kliegl lights, her movie cameras and went to work. The entire work was done there in Randolph. Interiors were made in the houses of the town and are "the real thing."

Miss Murray.

The picture itself is less an actual "production" than a story with a theme. The title speaks for itself, insinuation can do as much here as actual facts when competently handled by the gossips of a small town. The casting of this particular story are decidedly competent. They do enough harm to make an interesting story, though not exactly one of rapid-fire action. At any rate, it gives food for thought, and that is more than most pictures do. Miss Wilson has shown excellent judgment in setting her story in a locale at once out of the ordinary and true to life. It shows that there is just as much intrigue on Main street as on Fifth avenue.

Miss Wilson is a great admirer of Lillian Gish.

"The movies are just growing up to her," she said the other afternoon. "She is so human and acts so naturally that people wouldn't accept it as acting. The audiences have been trained on the hair-tearing, nail-biting type of acting. Registering emotion meant to exaggerate human feelings out of all proportion. Lillian Gish didn't do it and they couldn't understand it. Look at her now, though, she's called the Sarah Bernhardt of the American films. And she deserves it."

Miss Wilson shows that she has studied Lillian Gish. Not that she imitates her, but that she treats emotional and dramatic situations in the simple, unaffected manner that she feels people do under similar circumstances.

It seems plausible that people react less emotionally to given situations than the movies have led us to believe, but on the other hand different people react differently. O. Henry wrote a story in which one man tries to prove that people do act dramatic, while his friend said the other side. Under a circumstance that affected them both, one acted highly dramatic and the other was calm and unemotional. So that's that. At any rate, Miss Wilson's theory holds good so far as her work is concerned. See "Insinuation," for example.

TALMADGES' PLANS.

NOW that Norma and Constance Talmadge have left Hollywood and its perils behind them, they are up to the necks in plans for their trip abroad and for their coming productions. They sail on August 26 for Cherbourg and will spend a month in Paris. There they will join Frances and Anita Loos and her husband, John Emerson, and Constance will go over a story that Miss Loos has written for her.

Nothing has been said of the plans to take scenes from "The Garden of Allah" for Norma, but it is said that she expects to start in on "Within the Law" immediately on her return.

"CORONATION" FOR MAE MURRAY.

MAE MURRAY doesn't let hot weather interfere with the business of making movies. Sorrowful has the scissors snipped the last of the celluloid of "Broadway Rose" in the cutting room, than she was off looking up the necessary work for her next. "Coronation," which is long put into continuity form by Edmund Goulding, responsible for the scenario of "Peacock Alley" and "Broadway Rose."

At present Miss Murray is at her home on Long Island, where she is going over the proposed action of the story with her husband, Robert Z. Leonard who directs her productions, and Mr. Goulding. A cast will be chosen immediately and the "shooting" will begin within a week.

Army and the Coal Mines

It Will Be a Long Day Before Our Soldiers Are Used to Secure Profits for Private Interests

Mr. James J. Storrow, our State Fuel Administrator, suggests that the government ought to use the army to mine the coal. When he makes such a suggestion, he ought to be explicit and tell us whether he means that our army ought to mine the coal for the benefit of the owners of the coal mines or for the benefit of the government; whether they ought to labor to give profit to these coal owners whose breach of contract with their men caused the present situation, or whether they ought to be operated without profit to those who have been largely responsible for the present situation.

We assure Mr. Storrow that it will be a long day before the United States Army will be used to make secure the profits of the railroads and other interests which own our coal mines. The American people will suffer a great deal more inconvenience than they are now suffering before they will allow their soldiers to operate the coal mines for coal barons and railroads that own coal mines contrary to law. When the government operates the coal mines it will be when the government owns them and when the profits in operation go entirely to the people.

Solution to Coal Situation

Former Mayor Fitzgerald Says Public Ownership Alone Can Guarantee Adequate Supply of Fuel

Hon. John F. Fitzgerald said the other night that Public ownership is the only solution of the present coal situation. I said so six years ago in my campaign against Mr. Lodge, and the present condition of affairs confirms me in this belief. In no other way will the people of the United States feel certain that they can have an adequate supply of fuel.

Mr. Fitzgerald has also expressed the opinion that the public ought to operate the railroads and take profiteering and Wall Street speculation out of these vital public functions. Can anyone doubt that he is right?

If the public who are not "in the know" could know how many men whom they believe are conservative and opposed to any change have now come to the belief that the only solution of our difficulties is the public operation of the railroads with private profit eliminated, and the stockticker in Wall Street and State Street banished from all influence on railroad management, they would be astonished.

Killing Almost Fashionable

Government's Bad Example

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Have you noticed how common killing has become since the war? It is dangerous for nations to set the example. Individuals follow it. You pick up one page of a quiet newspaper and you read, "Gang Kills Gunman, Bystanders Hit." Then "Kill Man and Throw Body Into Bushes." Next comes "Father and Son Die in Feud." On another page of that paper you read about a pack of tigers coming down from the mountains in Mexico, attacking three families and killing three women, two men, two little boys and a baby. The difference between those tigers and many men is found in the fact that the tigers were driven from the mountains by starvation.

5-Cent Fare in Cambridge

We are pleased to learn that the trustees of our traction system are considering the establishment of a five-cent fare in Cambridge. Let the good work go on. Let the five-cent fare zones be extended as rapidly as possible, while we await the action of the next legislature to extend the fare over the whole system, which the public trustees have not now the power to do.

Please Define Courtesy

Prizes by the Pullman Company

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Mr. Carry, new president of the Pullman Sleeping Car Company, runs a newspaper, "The Pullman News," to let the employes know what the company is trying to do, and to keep the management in touch with the workers.

In the latest issue you see a contest with prizes offered to Pullman conductors and porters for the best definition of the word COURTESY.

What would be YOUR definition?

You might say offhand that the Golden Rule defines courtesy. "Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you." Or you might say that—

Real courtesy separates men from the brutes. And when it is lacking, men go back in manners to the state of brutes.

When hogs are hurrying toward the trough to eat, you never see one step aside to let an old, a feeble or a lady-pig go ahead.

Courtesy is self-sacrifice in the interest of self-respect.

Courtesy pays. It is to human life what oil is to an automobile or any other engine. Many men are worn away, in nerves and mind, for lack of a little courtesy that, like oil, would have prevented friction.

Men fail in business because courtesy is not in them. Many men have owed 90 per cent. of their success to courtesy, real and ALWAYS RECOGNIZED.

Here are the definitions and the names of the prize winners in the Pullman Company courtesy contest:

First prize, $50. Won by Porter Thomas J. Pickett, St. Louis:

Courtesy consists of giving those we meet such considerate attention that their every want will be satisfied, and they will realize the attention is due to real interest in their comfort.

Second prize, $35. Won by Conductor W. F. Lawler, Denver:

Courtesy is the spirit and essence of service; kindness and good will. The cheery word, the friendly smile, the helping hand—these are its handmaidens. It is born of a genile mind fostered by tact.

Third prize, $15. Won by Porter W. A. Hill, Cincinnati:

Do all the good you can, to all the people you can, whenever you can and as promptly and politely as you can.

The Block Party

Editor Boston American:

August 14, "J. S." gave forth a society woman's alleged statement concerning the proposed block party to be given in Newport on Fleet Day to which two thousand naval men are invited. The crew of the U. S. S. Pueblo, the receiving ship at New York, wishes to state for the benefit of that lady, that, although the men in the naval service have long since appreciated the sentiment of society toward the uniform, we are at least pleased to hear the sentiment of one so high in social circles expressed. It is indeed gratifying to know our enemies and their ideas. However, inasmuch as the navy men are not so particular as to whether or not the members of the fashionable set, or those who deem themselves a member of it, attend it, we are wondering whether or not that lady could really spare her servants for this event. We are sure that the average man-o'-war-man would much prefer dancing with one of her maids, or anyone of his own class, as it were, instead of such snobs and prudes as are apparently in the above-mentioned set. In other words, we couldn't be very well annoyed. THE CREW OF THE U. S. S. PUEBLO.

Cannot Break Ties

Editor Boston American:

Why should Great Britain be thrown down by so many Americans? Wake up! Use common sense and judgment. Settle your mind down once more to history and live up to the traditions which our forefathers set for us. Has not Great Britain and America, down through countless ages, served under "One God, One Law, Divine Democracy, Universal Brotherhood?" Why should the great population which has emigated to America from Ireland interfere with the great relationship between the two nations which some day may rule this universe? Did England stop the civil strife with this country when the great struggle between the North and South was at its height? No. Then why should we here in America interfere in any way in the trouble that is going on now between the North and South of Ireland? There is no reason why Americans in this country should furnish ammunition or men to give aid to Ireland. But, no matter what comes or goes, you can never break the strong links in the chain which bind the two nations.

Repeal the Espionage Act

Editor Boston American:

There is a general impression that the Espionage Act has been repealed. This is a mistake. It is no longer in force, because we are now at peace; but the moment another war is declared, it revives automatically, and anyone expressing disapproval of the war, even in private conversation, will become liable to twenty years' imprisonment and $20,000 fine.

The passage of the Espionage Act was a sharp departure from the best traditions of English-speaking people. It was defended on the ground that we were to grips with an exceptionally formidable foe, and that exceptional measures were necessary. But it has been fastened upon the country as a permanent policy. It would apply just as much to a war with any weak Latin American Republic, which would have no chance of justice except from enlightened public opinion within the United States.

Now is the time to press for the repeal of this vicious measure. Question the candidates for Congress now, before election and pledge them to get rid of it.

Old Age Pensions

Editor Boston American:

It will be well for the voters of this State to find out the attitude of the candidates for office in their respective districts toward the Old Age Pension bill. This is one of the most progressive pieces of legislation which has ever been presented to the Massachusetts Legislature. If justice had been meted out properly an old-age pension bill would have been adopted years ago. In my opinion, every legislator who has opposed that bill has failed on at least one occasion to perform properly his duty as a lawmaker. As one of the candidates for the House of Representatives from Ward 13, I wish to pledge myself as 100 per cent. in favor of an old-age pension bill which will benefit all citizens of this State.

ISN'T MOTHER SOMETIMES JUST NARROW-MINDED?

By Winifred Black

"A MOTHER always knows." That's the line that made such a hit in a play not long ago.

I wonder if it's true.

I wonder if a mother does always know.

I saw a woman in the street car yesterday, and she had a little boy with her—a little, chubby, big-eyed boy—my, but he was happy to be going out into the big world, and so interested in the car and in the conductor and the motorman and in the cross man opposite, and the peevish old lady next to him!

Oh, it was such a wonderful world, and he was so perfectly fascinated with everything in it that he forgot to climb up into the seat the minute he entered the car.

Yank—the woman with him gave him a jerk.

"Sit down!" she said. "Don't stare like a fool!"

The little fellow hurried as fast as he could and climbed into the seat and made himself as small as he could, and the tears were in his eyes and his little chin trembled, but he bit his lip and would not cry—yet it was easy to see that all the glory and wonder and beauty of the day were gone for him.

Now, does that mother "always know?"

Did she know yesterday when she yanked that little boy and hurt him and humiliated him that she was spoiling a whole day for him—a lovely, fresh, brand new day that would never be new again?

Did she know that she was making him afraid of her? Did she know that he would either hate her for her tyranny and her cruelty, or that he would become a little crushed, hopeless, cowardly, cringing creature, afraid of her, afraid of the conductor, afraid of the motorman, afraid of the cross old man, afraid of the peevish old lady, afraid of the world?

And he did want so much to be happy and to be kind and to be friendly!

Some day, I suppose, when that boy grows up and lacks the enterprise or in initiative, his mother will wonder what's the matter with him.

Perhaps if she really knew—she wouldn't wonder.

Does mother "always know"? Or isn't mother sometimes just selfish, ignorant, narrow-minded?

It certainly does seem as if it depended somewhat—upon the mother, doesn't it?

DO YOU DO MORE THAN YOUR SIMPLE DUTY?

How long is it since you have carried out a really generous impulse?

How long since you have done a kind and helpful deed?

Some time, isn't it?

Giving your family the time and attention you think they need, you feel, is about all that should be expected of you.

But this is merely a duty—expected of you.

There is not so much to commend when a man merely takes care of his own.

But what have you done outside of your duty to make somebody happier and more fit of courage to live?

Do you greet your newsboy with a smile and a cheery "good morning?"

Are you pleasant to the man who runs the elevator, are you more than a grouch to the street car conductor, to the traifeo who help to make life safer and better for you?

Have you made any attempt to shed sunshine on the unfortunate, the ill or bed ridden, the crippled and twisted soul which cannot hope for any happiness for themselves on this earth, except it is passed along by their fellow travellers?

"I'm eighty-two and can swim a river, chop down a tree, walk sprily and write as freely as ever I could," said E. MOODY BOYNTON, inventor of the mono-railway, during a visit to the Boston American. "For thirty years I have been fighting for recognition of my invention. I haven't lost courage, because I know what I've got, and railroad magnates know what I've got, and Wall Street does, too."

CITY COUNCILLOR JAMES J. (JERRY) WATSON has received a postcard from his old friend GEORGE FRED WILLIAMS, who is at present in Germany. Mr. Williams writes, "We get no news of the outside world, as the German newspapers do not seem interested. They discuss only the valuations of exchange and the fate of their country." He is soon to visit Vienna, where, he states, "matters are still worse."

SEEN AND HEARD

SKATE straps just naturally have some connection with ice. I saw a youngster in East Cambridge the other day who had two large pieces of ice, each slung in a skate strap. As a truck came along, the lad tossed the ice aboard and climbed on after it. Later in the day the boy was sitting behind a soap box, selling lemonade.

Recent fire in the Neponset section caused considerable neighborhood amusement. Pat in an oven burst into flames and the new maid rushed to the telephone, got the fire department on "Emergency" and shouted: "Come quick—there's a fire!" "Where is it?" asked the fireman at the other end of the wire. "In the stove!" screamed the girl, banging up the receiver. And then a man solved the problem by pulling in an alarm at the nearest box, which gave the firemen their first hint of its location.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON FALLING STARS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Why do stars in falling always go down if there is no gravity in space?—W. R., Baileville, Ark."

THERE seem to be two fundamental misconceptions underlying this question, the first of which at least is very widely entertained. The first misconception is that "stars fall," and the second is that anybody supposes that there is "no gravity in space." Einstein, if it is true, has suggested a new way of regarding gravitation (a way that practically concerns only professional mathematicians), but this only makes gravitation a property of space itself, a result of an inherent "curvature" occurring in the neighborhood of massive bodies and affecting their relative motions.

A "falling star" or "shooting star" is merely an object known to astronomers as a meteor, or, when it is very large and brilliant, as a fireball or meteorite.

Now, in contrast to this, consider what a star is. A star is a distant sun, and most of those visible to the naked eye are suns much greater than our sun. It is their enormous distance that causes them to appear as mere twinkling points. A star could not fall to the earth. If there was any falling in the case it would be the earth that would fall upon the star, and be burnt up in a twinkling. But the earth would have to fall twenty-five trillions of miles to reach the nearest star in the sky.

This brings us to the second branch of the question, that relating to gravitation in space. Of course there is gravitation in space—i. e., the force, or effect that we call gravitation extends across the intervening space that separates different bodies, no matter how wide that space may be. But the intensity of the force, which acts like an attraction, falls off as the distance increases, and it falls off faster than the distance increases; much faster that if the distance is doubled the force is divided by four and if the distance is trebled the force is divided by nine, and so on.

This relation between the force and the distance is known as "the law of the inverse squares," for the facts are all covered by the statement that the force varies inversely as the square of the distance. If the distance is halved the force is quadrupled, four being the inverse square of one-half, and if the distance is doubled the force is reduced to one-quarter, one-quarter being the inverse square of two. Everybody ought to know this as well as he knows that twice two are four. The same law applies to light and heat and other forms of radiation, a fact which may be taken as hinting that whatever, precisely, gravitation may be, at any rate it is some expression of radiant energy.

Now, what is meant by falling? It is the motion under gravitation of a relatively small body toward the center of gravity of a relatively large one. Bodies near the earth fall toward the earth's center; bodies near the moon fall toward the moon's center; bodies close to the sun fall into the sun. In fact, even the motion of a planet in its orbit is a kind of fall toward the sun, turned by cross-motion into a revolution around it.

—Medbury Says—

Farmers Claim There is Big Money In Pigs. How About Road Hogs?

Farmers claim that there is big money in pigs. The county could also make a lot of dough out of road hogs if the speed cops could pinch enough of them.

Some automobilists on the State highways pass you so fast that they make you think you're going backwards.

But they're very generous. All they want is the road and they let you have the whole wheat field to yourself.

The careful drivers might as well stay home.

The reckless chauffeurs won't allow you to stay on the road and the farmers won't allow you in in the field.

One guy was edged off into a ditch but the other machine wouldn't stop.

The driver said to the fellow sitting next to him "There's no use in going back. He isn't lying there cold, the machine's over him."

Of course, they never go out of their way to run into you, especially when they're in a hurry.

But you're out of luck if you happen to be on the road when they've got lots of time.

When the Indians would attack you they'd wear your scalp on their belt. The road hog is pretty near the same only he hangs your front fender and headlights on his radiator.

You're riding along in a machine when all of a sudden you meet one of these and then, you're walking.

Your car is on the road and all you've got to do is to find it.

After one of these road hogs knocked a motorist's machine to kindling wood he got up and said when he got to a garage he'd have them send out a service car to tow him in.

The other motorist told him not to bother; that he'd just borrow a broom from one of the farmhouses and sweep his machine into the next town.

Most automobilists like to speed along at fifty miles an hour. They seem to think that if they go any slower they'll be arrested for vagrancy.

They whizz by you so fast that if they don't hit you the wind from the machine gives you the fits.

They go so quickly they can't read the sign posts along the road but lots of times they lose control of the machine and take the sign post with them.

One guy rang up the police department and wanted to know if it was true that they had six speeders in jail. The sergeant told him they had and asked him if he was to bail them out.

The guy said, "No, I just wanted to make sure that they were in jail and if they were I was going to take the wife and kids out for a ride."
